MEXICAN REVOLT IS GAINING STRENGTH

CALLES STRIKES AT REBEL THREAT WITH ADVANCING TROOPS

Planes Drop Bombs For Peace Over Rebel
Troops

MEXICO CITY, March 5.—Plutarco Elias Calles, recalled from private life to combat rebellion in two sections of the republic, struck boldly today at the insurgent military forces centered in Vera Cruz, Sonora and surrounding states.

Rapidly concentrating the modern army in the history of Mexico, the minister of war already has completed movement of troops to the vital Vera Cruz front and a column of soldiers has been dispatched against the rebellious chief of military operations in that district, Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre. Rebels evacuated Esperanza, near the Vera Cruz frontier, as federal troops advanced.

Simultaneously, federal troops were concentrated at strategic points in the northern districts where the military operations against Gen. Francisco R. Manzo in Sonora, and Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar in the Laguna district of Coahuila state, will be delayed until a strong force is in position to attack.

The troops in the Vera Cruz area—under command of Gen. Juan Almazan—will operate along the Mexican Railway, according to an official government announcement. Other columns will operate in the Isthmus region and in the frontier zone of Oaxaca and Vera Cruz states.

Military airplanes made a number of exploration flights over rebel encampments in the state of Vera Cruz yesterday, dropping handbills in which the government appealed to the soldiers and their officers for peace.

"Since last night," the official statement said, "the federal forces have been leaving for Ometusco, Oriental and San Marcos (in the Vera Cruz area). Cavalry forces have been placed under command of General Miguel M. Acosta and have advanced from San Marcos to Esperanza without getting in touch with the enemy."

The rebels, upon learning of the presence of federal troops, retired from Esperanza to Orizaba after tearing up about six miles of railway track, which must be repaired before the federal advance can be made.

The capital remained calm today although tremendous military activity continued here and at Valbuena flying field. The rebellion had been bloodless up to an early hour this morning, the government announced in an official review of the military situation, which has not changed noticeably since Sunday night. President Portillo, after announcing that General Escobar, commander in the Laguna district near Torreón, had joined in the rebellion, issued a signed statement attacking the insurgent leaders.

"I consider the rebel movement headed by Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre in the state of Vera Cruz and Gen. Francisco R. Manzo in Sonora and Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar in Coahuila, has been the most unjustified of all those that have occurred within the republic in recent times," said the president's statement.

American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow conferred at the foreign office yesterday and then went to Chapultepec castle to talk with Portillo for fifteen minutes. He declined to discuss the situation, but it was understood he was keeping the United States state department fully informed.

COOLIDGE TURNS TO WRITING

NEW YORK, March 5.—Calvin Coolidge has chosen magazine writing as his occupation for the immediate future.

Three magazines—Cosmopolitan, Ladies Home Journal and the American—have arranged with Mr. Coolidge for articles on the presidency. The first of them will appear Friday in the April issue of the Cosmopolitan.

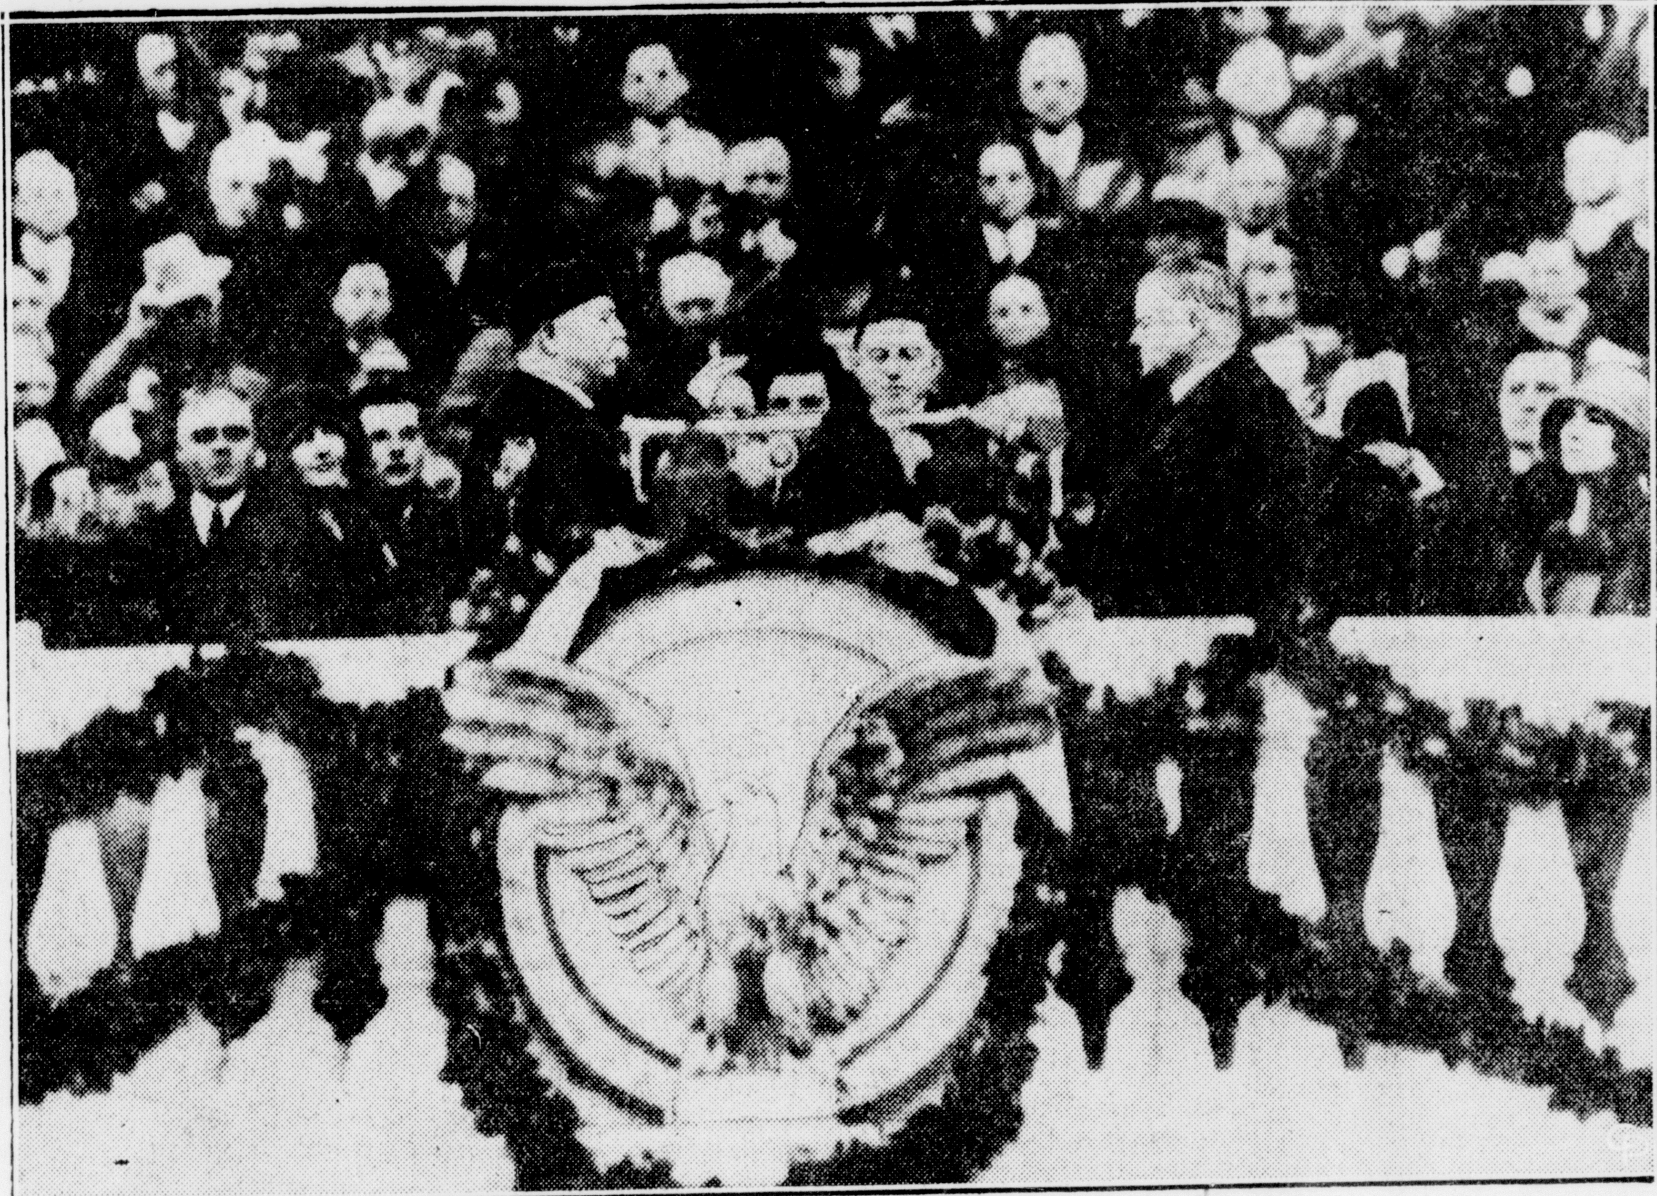

Different phases of the executive career from which Mr. Coolidge has retired, including the narrative of his administration, treatment of world problems and descriptions of everyday life in the White House will be covered in the series.

No announcement concerning Mr. Coolidge's remuneration for his literary work was made, it was reported in some quarters, however, that contracts already executed would bring him $75,000 and that under one agreement he would receive six dollars a word.

THREE MISSING AFTER BLAST WRECKS HOTEL

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 5.—Firemen dug out the tangled ruins of the Backus Hotel today searching for the bodies of three persons missing since the hotel was wrecked by a gas explosion late yesterday.

The blast occurred when seepage from a leaky gas main ignited the hotel—a small frame structure—collapsed, trapping ten persons, seven of whom were rescued. The injured include Don Pierce, Eloise Pierce, aged 18 months; Maxine Pierce, 6; Junior Williams, 2; and Mrs. Ida Longwell. Both of Mrs. Pierce's legs were broken. Maxine Pierce suffered a broken leg and a fractured skull. The others suffered broken legs and cuts.

Several guests who escaped reported today that just before the blast occurred they smelled gas.

CHILD TELLS TORTURE STORY; WOMAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

MARSHALL, Mich., March 5.—While a pale, emaciated wisp of a girl, Lillian Zanger, 6, was in Ann Arbor Hospital suffering from two broken arms, injuries to the head and apparent hunger today, Calhoun County authorities were investigating her harrowing story. In the meantime Mrs. Herman Marks of Lee Township, charged with torturing and injuring the child, was enroute here from Kenton, O., in the custody of Calhoun County officers. She disappeared immediately after the child's condition was discovered by Mrs. Phillips Hunter, county nurse.

Mrs. Marks fled while Mrs. Hunter was taking the child to the University Hospital for treatment. It was after Lillian had related the story of her treatment while in the care of Mrs. Marks that county officers went to the house to arrest her.

For several hours the child was unable to speak coherently, but as food restored strength, she began to talk.

According to Lillian, she was often locked in a dark closet and given only raw meat. One arm was broken, the result of a blow from a poker, she asserts, and the other was broken when she fell from a table upon which she was made to stand as punishment.

The head injury, it is alleged, resulted when the child was held by her feet and her head was knocked against the floor. The scars on her back are the marks left by a hot iron, she told authorities.

Authorities say Lillian is the fifth child Mrs. Marks has taken to live with her. Two are reported to have died several years ago, while one ran away. The runaway child, it is said, stands ready to testify as to ill treatment accorded her in the Marks home. She has told officers that she "was whipped every day she was there."

SISTER OF WRIGHTS BURIED IN DAYTON

DAYTON, O., March 5.—Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Wright Haskell, sister of Orville and the late Wilbur Wright, inventors of the airplane, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the home of Orville Wright in Oakwood. Burial will be in Woodland Cemetery.

Mrs. Wright Haskell was the wife of Henry J. Haskell, editor of the Kansas City Star, and died Sunday night at her home in Kansas City after a brief illness, from pneumonia.

PREPARE AMMUNITION IN FIGHT TO CONTROL STANDARD OIL CO.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Harsh words skimmed back and forth across a mahogany-topped table in the Standard Oil of Indiana building today as field marshals in the billion-dollar proxy war strove to agree on the ammunition to be used in the battle of Whiting Thursday afternoon. Both sides spread their weapons on the table but there seemed to be little likelihood of an agreement.

Representatives of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is fighting to force Col. Robert W. Stewart off the board of the Standard Oil Company because he refused to obey John D.'s demand to resign, looked with suspicion upon the proxies displayed by the Stewart group. Stewart's representatives like-

THE COOLIDGE ARE HOME

Little Branch Line Train Bears Former President
And Wife To Northampton

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 5.—The news in this quiet town today was that the Coolidges had come back home.

The came back much as they left—over the twenty mile branch line that meanders down to Springfield. An engine, an empty day coach and a special car made up the unpretentious train that rattled and puffed into Northampton shortly after midnight, an hour and ten minutes late.

Even if Calvin Coolidge had been awake, he probably would not have worried about the delay, for it was apparent as he traveled up the Atlantic seaboard last night that for the first time in eight years he was care-free.

The former president and Mrs. Coolidge had been asleep for more than an hour when the special car was shunted onto a side track through a thick New England fog and left there until morning. Today the Coolidges will resume their life in the modest white duplex a few blocks away from the railroad station.

About thirty neighbors waited at the station last night to welcome Northampton's most distinguished citizens, but when they learned Coolidge already was asleep they went to their homes.

It was here more than thirty years ago that Coolidge was elected councilman and began his political career that culminated yesterday when citizens of seven states gathered along the route of his train to shout good-bye and good luck.

Rain and snow beat about the special car as it left Washington, crossed Maryland and continued up through Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, but throngs were at every station.

There will be no triumphal parade today—Coolidge has forbidden it—but some neighbors may drop in for a while after the former president and his wife get the furniture in order and see that the furnace is working right.

POLICE NAME THREE ALLEGED GUNMEN IN VALENTINE MURDER

Identify Pair Who Wore
Uniforms In Killing
Seven

CHICAGO, March 5.—Three more men were named by police today as members of the machine gun squad which executed seven "Bugs" Moran beer runners here on February 14.

They are Joseph Lolordo, whose brother, Pasqualino, was murdered after he had succeeded the late Tony Lombardo as head of one branch of Sicilian gangsters allied with Scarface Al Capone; and Frederick R. Burke and James Ray who are believed to have been imported from St. Louis.

The latter two, police believe, wore police uniforms and aimed at least one of the Thompson machine guns with which the Morantes were wiped out.

Jack McGurn, who was arrested last week in a bid-out in the Stevens Hotel with his girl, Louise Rolfe, is pictured now as the payoff man of the executions instead of an actual participant in the murders.

Police say they believe McGurn arranged to have the Morantes "put on the spot" where they could be killed and that he paid the St. Louis gangsters $10,000 each for their bloody task.

The new personalities which have been injected into the crime do not alter the massacre motive, namely that the Gusenberg brothers and their friends were slain to avenge the murder of Pasqualino Lolordo, who was shot down in his apartment this winter. Lolordo's death was laid to the Sicilian group by the Sicilian group.

THREE AUTO BILLS

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Three measures affecting motorists were on the house calendar for passage today.

If enacted into law the measures would abolish the present speed limit outside municipalities, reduce the automobile license fee for auto-killed, those injured were Mrs. Peggy Dorey, 54, Newark; her husband, H. A. Dorey, 55, one of the owners of the Holphane Reflector Company, and Sylvia Jones, daughter of Mrs. Jones. The accident occurred when Dorey, who was driving, attempted to pass another car.

CONFLICT BETWEEN REBEL AND FEDERAL FORCES IS NEARING

Revolters Permit Religious Rites; Claim
11 States

NOGALES, Ariz., March 5.—The "bloodless" revolt in Mexico seemed destined today to turn into open conflict between the rebelling forces and loyal central government supporters. Reports that troops of the central government were planning a drive were followed by word that the rebels were amassing their troops at central points.

The revolters made a direct strategic attempt to obtain favor of the Catholic church, Gov. Fausto Topete of Sonora announcing in a manifesto that the church services would be permitted. Priests who had taken shelter in Nogales, Ariz., crossed immediately into Nogales, Sonora and masses were said for the first time in many weeks. Services of thanksgiving were held last night through the state of Sonora, reports here said.

The revolting forces claimed eleven states today as joined in the revolt.

Several border towns have been seized by the rebels. Agua Prieta and Naco in Sonora, both strategic rail points, were taken over without a shot being fired.

United States troops were reported watching against the reported exodus of 800 Yaqui Indians from Mexico into the United States. The Indians are well-armed, according to reports and are reported ready to fight through any opposition in order to gain the border.

The latest announcement from the revolution headquarters in Nogales, Sonora, said General Juan Caraveo, governor of the state of Chihuahua, had joined in the revolt.

There is little question in informed circles here that the revolt is gaining ground.

An unconfirmed report said General Ricardo Topete, brother of Fausto Topete, had taken 1,500 men from Esperanza Sonora, to Sinaloa to meet federal troops. Five hundred men under General Carrillo, who remained loyal to the central government, were reported moving south in that state. This force was said to have torn up railroad tracks and destroyed bridges to cover their retreat.

General Aguilera in the state of Zacatecas, was reported to have joined the revolt with 4,000 men.

Reports from El Paso and Laredo, Tex., and Douglas, Ariz., indicated the revolt was moving eastward along the border. The states claimed by the revolutionists are: Sinaloa, Sonora, Zacatecas, Colima, Nayarit, Oaxaca, Jalisco, Vera Cruz, Chihuahua, Coahuila and Durango.

I. M. Vasquez, Mexican consul here, succinctly branded these claims as "a lie." He declared Gov. Topete and the two Generals Aguilera to be the only leaders in the movement.

Topete's manifesto stated that until the government arising from the revolution can be established in Mexico City, "I consider that the religious problem can be settled definitely by organized action establishing the liberty of conscience and non-interference by the state in religious matters respecting all beliefs."

It therefore made known to all ministers of all religions that they can officiate in their respective churches free from political matters from our government, which will be an exclusive civil one," the manifesto said.

United States soldiers along the border have been cautioned to refrain from crossing over the border until conditions become settled. A military board of strategy met last night at Ortiz, headquarters of General Francisco Manzo, to map out a plan of defense against an expected aerial attack from central government forces.

The revolting forces are moving mobile units rapidly, adding to the belief that conflict cannot be more than thirty-six hours off.

Highways leading from the international border are picketed heavily and only those persons accredited by the rebels are permitted to pass.

ONE KILLED WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—One woman was killed and three other persons were injured, one seriously, when their automobile skidded into a ditch and turned over eight miles east of here last night. Mrs. Emma W. Jones, 49, Newark, was killed. Those injured were Mrs. Peggy Dorey, 54, Newark; her husband, H. A. Dorey, 55, one of the owners of the Holphane Reflector Company, and Sylvia Jones, daughter of Mrs. Jones. The accident occurred when Dorey, who was driving, attempted to pass another car.

REPORT TWENTY FIVE CRITICALLY ILL AND EIGHT ARE BLINDED

Three Under Arrest While Police Continue Probe; Home-Made Alcohol Blamed; Women Among
"Death Toast" Victims

PEORIA, Ill., March 5.—Tracing a labyrinth of bootleg trails, police and federal officers today joined in a hunt for the source of the poisoned alcohol which formed the basis for "death toasts" that killed fifteen persons here, left eight blind and twenty-five others critically ill.

The victims still living are under treatment in their homes and in hospitals, suffering intense agony from the poison. Physicians hold out little hope that they will escape blindness or death.

Three arrests were made yesterday and the police drive resulted in 3,000 bootleggers shutting down.

Police said the poison was distributed from a fifty-gallon batch manufactured under a "new process." The alcohol was purchased by nearly two score persons, it appeared, the cocktails they manufactured with the liquor proving death potions.

The dead are: Mrs. Katherine Gary, John Dempsey, 38; Frank Aylward, 38; Clarence Hoppe, 28; Harold Huddleston, 28; Mrs. Ellen McFadden, 29; Richard Farra, 32; and Edward Baldwin, 38, all of Peoria; W. A. Sammons, 45, Chicago; Harold Heile, 26, and Charles Holland, 29, of Washington; Andrew Heaton, 60, Lance Hitz, 56, Ben Teel, 60 and Marshall Easley, 59, of Vermont.

The first word of the poison was learned when three men who attended a livestock men's party last Thursday night, died within forty-eight hours. Four more deaths occurred Sunday and eight persons died yesterday. The blunders cases were reported yesterday.

The exact nature of the poison has not been learned. W. S. Elliott, coroner who performed post mortem examinations, said Elliott said chemists advised that the poison affected pancreas. Convulsions and blindness must have preceded every death, he said.

Morris Mansfield, Louis Feld and Walter Nieber are the three men arrested. No charges have been lodged against them, but they are being held for questioning. Feld owns the Stockyards Hotel where the livestock party was held. Nieber operates a soft drink parlor. Mansfield is reported to have confessed that he sold a gallon of alcohol to Feld. He said he got the alcohol from Chicago, but chemists declared the alcohol was manufactured here.

A few of the affected persons have regained consciousness, but no information as to the source of the liquor has been obtained. The condition of the victims is too serious to permit questioning them, physicians said.

Scattered opposition has developed in independent Republican and Democratic ranks, against three of the men whose names are to be sent to the senate by Mr. Hoover this afternoon for confirmation. They are Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, James W. Good, to be secretary of war, and William D. Mitchell, to be attorney general.

There seems little likelihood the weakened minority could defeat any one of the three and it is possible the contests against them may be dropped.

Mellon is being opposed by Senators Coughens, Republican, Michigan, and McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, both of whom have been opposing the tax policies of the treasury secretary for several years.

Good's stand in congress several years ago against the Ford offer for Muscle Shoals and reports concerning his relations with public utilities interests, particularly the Insull properties, is being privately investigated by the independent group which has been fighting the power combine.

Mitchell's connections with the stoppage of a grand jury investigation of the Jackson Barnett Indian case is being delved into by those interested in recent Indian bureau investigation.

No word of opposition has yet been raised against Walter F. Brown, Ohio, as postmaster general; Charles Francis Adams, Massachusetts, as secretary of the navy; and Arthur M. Hyde, Missouri, as secretary of interior, and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, California, as secretary of interior.

Names of the hold-overs from the Coolidge cabinet, including Mellon, may not be submitted to the senate by Hoover. Mr. Hoover also is expected to submit nominees for various other vacant posts.

Consideration of nominations is the only business to be transacted in the special session which may not last more than three or four days. After acting on the appointments, the senate will adjourn to meet in special session with the house early in April to deal with tariff revision and farm relief problems.

DELETES TRANSFER OF DRY ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Hoover deleted completely from the text of his inaugural address yesterday the sentence recommending transfer of enforcement activities from the treasury department to the department of justice.

The deleted sentence read "In the meantime it is evident that the large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the treasury department to one of more effective organizations."

No explanation of the deletion was made.

This recommendation was the chief specific proposal for better prohibition enforcement which Mr. Hoover has espoused.

BOY KIDNAPED FROM AKRON IS BEING SOUGHT

Warrant Issued For Grandfather As Search Starts

AKRON, O., March 5.—Search for eight-year-old Jimmy Banks, kidnaped from within two blocks of his school Monday morning, spread to three states today. Operatives of the Ohio Detective Bureau, as well as police officials, were seeking the missing youth.

A description of a 1923 Ford touring car containing two men, two women and another boy has been flashed over Ohio and adjoining states, and Police Prosecutor George Doran has issued a warrant for the arrest of Oakes Lane, the missing boy's grandfather.

Lane resides in Pikesville, Ky. The parents of the missing boy, and another couple who had been rooming here, left Akron suddenly yesterday about the time Jimmy is believed to have been kidnaped. Three weeks ago Jimmy was kidnaped from his father's restaurant by the grandparent, it was charged by Claude Banks, father of the missing boy.

Operatives of the Ohio Detective Bureau intercepted the party near Wooster after an exciting chase over the Three C Highway, but Banks refused to prosecute after Jimmy had been safely returned to him.

The round-up of alleged bandits began with the arrest in Muncie, Ind., of Lavert Stevens who was brought here yesterday.

Stevens was said to have implicated the other three men. They are Joseph Kowalski, held at Muncie; Bernard Maynard, captured at Zanesville, O., and Melvin Haldeman, held at Anderson, Ind.

The bank was robbed last Wednesday. The robbers were trailed to Harland, Ind., where their automobile was found abandoned.

Mrs. Wright Haskell was the wife of Henry J. Haskell, editor of the Kansas City Star, and died Sunday night at her home in Kansas City after a brief illness, from pneumonia.

PREPARE AMMUNITION IN FIGHT TO CONTROL STANDARD OIL CO.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Harsh words skimmed back and forth across a mahogany-topped table in the Standard Oil of Indiana building today as field marshals in the billion-dollar proxy war strove to agree on the ammunition to be used in the battle of Whiting Thursday afternoon. Both sides spread their weapons on the table but there seemed to be little likelihood of an agreement.

Representatives of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is fighting to force Col. Robert W. Stewart off the board of the Standard Oil Company because he refused to obey John D.'s demand to resign, looked with suspicion upon the proxies displayed by the Stewart group.

Stewart's representatives likewise searched for "dum-dums" among the thousands of proxies presented by the Rockefellers.

At the stockholders' meeting at Whiting, Ind., the group which comes through with the most valid proxies will walk off with control of the billion-dollar oil company.

Each share of stock entitles its owner to one vote in the meeting and as both sides have spent thousands of dollars in a campaign to corral a majority of the votes, they are equally determined not to have their proxies thrown out on technicalities.

From the proxy checking room came sounds of dispute which indicated to those outside the real contest may be carried into the shareholders meeting itself.

There is little question in informed circles here that the revolt is gaining ground.

An unconfirmed report said General Ricardo Topete, brother of Fausto Topete, had taken 1,500 men from Esperanza Sonora, to Sinaloa to meet federal troops.

Five hundred men under General Carrillo, who remained loyal to the central government, were reported moving south in that state. This force was said to have torn up railroad tracks and destroyed bridges to cover their retreat.

General Aguilera in the state of Zacatecas, was reported to have joined the revolt with 4,000 men.

Reports from El Paso and Laredo, Tex., and Douglas, Ariz., indicated the revolt was moving eastward along the border. The states claimed by the revolutionists are Sinaloa, Sonora, Zacatecas, Colima, Nayarit, Oaxaca, Jalisco, Vera Cruz, Chihuahua, Coahuila and Durango.

I. M. Vasquez, Mexican consul here, succinctly branded these claims as "a lie." He declared Gov. Topete and the two Generals Aguirre to be the only leaders in the movement.

His manifesto stated that until the government arising from the revolution can be established in Mexico City, "I consider that the religious problem can be settled definitely by organized action establishing the liberty of conscience and non-interference by the state in religious matters respecting all beliefs."

It is therefore made known to all ministers of all religions that they can officiate in their respective churches free from political matters from our government, which will be an exclusive civil one," the manifesto said.

United States soldiers along the border have been cautioned to refrain from crossing over the horizon until conditions become settled.

A military board of strategy met last night at Ortiz, headquarters of General Francisco Manzo, to map out a plan of defense against an expected aerial attack from central government forces.

The revolting forces are moving mobile units rapidly, adding to the belief that conflict cannot be more than thirty-six hours off.

Highways leading from the international border are picketed heavily and only those persons accredited by the rebels are permitted to pass.

Three Under Arrest While Police Continue Probe; Home-Made Alcohol Blamed; Women Among "Death Toast" Victims

PEORIA, Ill., March 5.—Tracing a labyrinth of bootleg trails, police and federal officers today joined in a hunt for the source of the poisoned alcohol which formed the basis for "death toasts" that killed fifteen persons here, left eight blind and twenty-five others critically ill.

The victims still living are under treatment in their homes and in hospitals, suffering intense agony from the poison. Physicians hold out little hope that they will escape blindness or death.

Three arrests were made yesterday and the police drive resulted in 3,000 bootleggers shutting down.

Police said the poison was distributed from a fifty-gallon batch manufactured under a "new process." The alcohol was purchased by nearly two score persons, it appeared, the cocktails they manufactured with the liquor proving death potions.

SMALL OPPOSITION TO HOOVER CABINET CHOICES EXPECTED

Mellon, Good And Mitchell May Draw Attacks

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A distinctly favorable attitude toward President Hoover's proposed cabinet appointments was manifest by senate leaders today as the new upper house was convened in special session to receive Mr. Hoover's selections.

Scattered opposition has developed in independent Republican and Democratic ranks, against three of the men whose names are to be sent to the senate by Mr. Hoover this afternoon for confirmation. They are Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, James W. Good, to be secretary of war, and William D. Mitchell, to be attorney general.

There seems little likelihood the weakened minority could defeat any one of the three and it is possible the contests against them may be dropped.

Mellon is being opposed by Senators Couzens, Republican, Michigan, and McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, both of whom have been opposing the tax policies of the treasury secretary for several years.

Good's stand in congress several years ago against the Ford offer for Muscle Shoals and reports concerning his relations with public utilities interests, particularly the Insull properties, is being privately investigated by the independent group which has been fighting the power combine.

Mitchell's connections with the stoppage of a grand jury investigation of the Jackson Barnett Indian case is being delved into by those interested in recent Indian bureau investigation.

No word of opposition has yet been raised against Walter F. Brown, Ohio, as postmaster general; Charles Francis Adams, Massachusetts, as secretary of the navy; former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde, Michigan, as secretary of interior, and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, California, as secretary of interior.

Names of the hold-overs from the Coolidge cabinet, including Mellon, may not be submitted to the senate by Hoover. Mr. Hoover also is expected to submit nominees for various other vacant posts.

Consideration of nominations is the only business to be transacted in the special session which may not last more than three or four days. After acting on the appointments the senate will adjourn to meet in special session with the house early in April to deal with tariff revision and farm relief problems.

DELETES TRANSFER OF DRY ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Hoover deleted completely from the text of his inaugural address yesterday the sentence recommending transfer of enforcement activities from the treasury department to the department of justice.

The deleted sentence read "In the meantime it is evident that a large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the treasury department to one of more effective organizations."

No explanation of the deletion was made.

This recommendation was the chief specific proposal for better prohibition enforcement which Mr. Hoover has espoused.

BOY KIDNAPED FROM AKRON IS BEING SOUGHT

Warrant Issued For Grandfather As Search Starts

AKRON, O., March 5.—Search for eight-year-old Jimmy Banks, kidnaped from within two blocks of his school Monday morning, spread to three states today.

Operatives of the Ohio Detective Bureau, as well as police officials, were seeking the missing youth in Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

A description of a 1923 Ford touring car containing two men, two women and another boy has been flashed over Ohio and adjoining states, and Police Prosecutor George Doran has issued a warrant for the arrest of Oysker Lane, the missing boy's grandfather.

Lane resides in Pikesville, Ky. The parents of the missing boy, and another couple who had been rooming here, left Akron suddenly yesterday about the time Jimmy is believed to have been kidnaped.

Three weeks ago Jimmy was kidnaped from his father's restaurant by the grandparent, it was charged by Claude Banks, father of the missing boy.

Operatives of the Ohio Detective Bureau intercepted the party near Wooster after an exciting chase over the Three C Highway, but Banks refused to prosecute after Jimmy had been safely returned to him.

CAPTURE FOUR BANK BANDITS

DEFIANCE, O., March 5.—Four men were under arrest in Ohio and Indiana today, charged with looting the First National Bank at Hillsville, near here, of $9,000 last week.

The round-up of alleged bandits began with the arrest in Muncie, Ind., of Lavert Stevens who was brought here yesterday.

Stevens was said to have implicated the other three men. They are Joseph Kowalski, held at Muncie; Bernard Maynard, captured at Zanesville, O., and Melvin Haldiman, held at Anderson, Ind.

The bank was robbed last Wednesday. The robbers were trailed to Harland, Ind., where their automobile was found abandoned.

CADET BATTALION ON DRESS PARADE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Taking advantage of the balmy, spring-like weather Sunday, the cadet battalion at the O. S. and S. O. Home held the first dress parade of the year that afternoon.

Although similar parades will be held at scheduled intervals, they will take place from time to time when the weather permits, according to Superintendent C. V. Burton.

Superintendent Burton also made known another innovation, which he has established at the Home and which is designed to place added responsibility on the shoulders of the cadets in order to make them more self-reliant.

Interior guard duty was inaugurated during the day Saturday and Sunday. Cadets stationed at different points on the grounds performed sentry duty. Other cadets will have a chance to perform guard duty from time to time. It is good practice and has its educational benefits, according to Superintendent Burton.

OHIO OATS CROP TO DEPEND ON WHEAT

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Ohio's 1929 acreage of oats will depend largely on what has happened to the wheat during the winter, in the opinion of R. C. Arnold, of the rural economics department of Ohio State University. And, he said, the next few weeks will tell the story of the wheat crop prospects in the state.

Last year's record acreage of oats was due largely to the wheat failure, the oats having been planted in fields where wheat had been killed. However, there was an extremely heavy crop of oats throughout the country during the year, and 25 per cent more oats was on the farms of the country at the beginning of this year than at the beginning of last.

Oh, how it renovates your liver and puts new life and pep in you, more than you can expect."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and run-down systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

DON'T STAY FAT IN THESE DAYS

You see countless people who have gained new beauty, new health and vim, by fighting excess fat. Some have done this by abnormal exercise and diet, some in a modern, scientific way. Why not follow their example?

There is a way based on scientific research. It combats a cause of excess fat which starvation cannot fight. That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 20 years. Millions of boxes of them. The results you see wherever you look should induce you to accept them.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. So there is no secret, no reason to fear harm. You will know that all the good results come in a natural way. Go learn them now, by asking your druggist for $1 box of Marmola.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. SCHOOL SAVINGS IN FEBRUARY INCREASE

Thanks to pupils of McKinley grade school building, more money was deposited in the public schools' savings account in February than during the corresponding month in 1928, according to a statement issued by Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

Thrifty school children saved $264.48 during the past month as compared with total deposits of $254.79 in February, 1928.

McKinley saved the record for the month by depositing a total of $162.03 in February as compared with $112.56 during the same month last year. All other schools deposited less this February than a year ago. Spring Hill slumped from $58.12 in 1928 to $49.82 last month. Central first grade dropped from $26.06 to $18.98. Orient Hill slipped from $21.88 to $14.44 and Lincoln descended from $36.16 to $20.48.

CLEVELAND WILL ELIMINATE AMBER

CLEVELAND, O., March 5.—The amber light in the city traffic signals will be eliminated here, according to Traffic Commissioner Edward J. Donahue.

Donahue said he had made the decision because the amber light signal was being used by all red light crashers as an "alibi" when they get in court.

Donahue said the experiment appears to be satisfactory.

"The new arrangement will also give the pedestrians more of a chance," he said. "When the lights are on amber for three or four seconds, pedestrians and automobiles start, with confusion as a result. Now the amber becomes the red and all must wait."

The old excuse of the light crasher has been: "The light was on amber and not red." Thirty-six of the ninety-seven traffic cases in municipal court here on one day were light crashers, and each defendant said the light was amber when he went through.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. AMANDA ANN ADAMS, 86, MCNDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Amanda Ann Adams, 86, died at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Zell, 126 W. Market St., at midnight Monday.

Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage and is believed to have been the indirect result of a fall sustained last Friday evening. Mrs. Adams, until her condition took the serious turn Friday night, had been enjoying fair health considering her advanced age.

She was born in Spring Valey, July 7, 1842 and was the daughter of Silas and Jane Riddell. Mrs. Adams spent most of her married life in Greene County and for many years had made her home with her son-in-law and daughter in Xenia.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Gertrude A. Zell, with whom she lived, and two nephews, Charles Riddell, this city, and Warren Riddell, Dayton, O. One daughter, Rella, passed away more than ten years ago.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the T. H. Zell residence with interment in Woodland Cemetery.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN JUVENILE COURT

Mrs. Mary Louise Hill, 22, colored, Detroit, Mich., charged with contributing to the delinquency of her 14-year-old sister Helen Curl, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Juvenile Judge S. C. The charge was made against Mrs. Hill by her mother, Mrs. Jessie Toles, 713 E. Church St., last October, and juvenile court authorities say she had the young girl in her custody until about a month ago when she was returned to orphanage and is believed to have been the indirect result of a fall sustained last Friday evening. Mrs. Adams, until her condition took the serious turn Friday night, had been enjoying fair health considering her advanced age.

Fire Insurance Stabilizes Credit

WITHOUT fire insurance, credit—the medium and means of business expansion—would be almost wholly curtailed. Through the credit system with the security afforded by fire insurance, loans are made to aid in building homes, mercantile and manufacturing establishments and general commercial development. Credit finds insurance indispensable to its safe continuance.

Without fire insurance, bankers—real estate men, contractors, building and loan organizations and others who grant credit on future developments would doubtless consider the risks to be taken in making loans too hazardous to contemplate.

Without fire insurance "modern business," monumental cities, gigantic construction projects, large production, new sub-divisions to take the cities' overflow—would not have been possible.

Finance and insurance work together in promoting the Nation's building activities, in supporting its manufacturing, distribution of goods and employment of labor.

In the development and support of our great structure of credit, stock fire insurance—as written by the 229 companies constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters—has carried and will continue to carry the major load of the underlying responsibility and this at a cost that on the average has constantly declined for more than twenty years.

Donahue said he had made the decision because the amber light signal was being used by all red light crashers as an "alibi" when they get in court.

Donahue said the experiment appears to be satisfactory.

"The new arrangement will also give the pedestrians more of a chance," he said. "When the lights are on amber for three or four seconds, pedestrians and automobiles start, with confusion as a result. Now the amber becomes the red and all must wait."

The old excuse of the light crasher has been: "The light was on amber and not red." Thirty-six of the ninety-seven traffic cases in municipal court here on one day were light crashers, and each defendant said the light was amber when he went through.

Fire Insurance Stabilizes Credit

WITHOUT fire insurance, credit—the medium and means of business expansion—would be almost wholly curtailed. Through the credit system with the security afforded by fire insurance, loans are made to aid in building homes, mercantile and manufacturing establishments and general commercial development. Credit finds insurance indispensable to its safe continuance.

Without fire insurance, bankers—real estate men, contractors, building and loan organizations and others who grant credit on future developments would doubtless consider the risks to be taken in making loans too hazardous to contemplate.

Without fire insurance "modern business," monumental cities, gigantic construction projects, large production, new sub-divisions to take the cities' overflow—would not have been possible.

Finance and insurance work together in promoting the Nation's building activities, in supporting its manufacturing, distribution of goods and employment of labor.

In the development and support of our great structure of credit, stock fire insurance—as written by the 229 companies constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters—has carried and will continue to carry the major load of the underlying responsibility and this at a cost that on the average has constantly declined for more than twenty years.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY HAS FOUNDERS' DAY

Because the day was so stormy that women were disinclined to venture from their homes, only eight women attended the initial meeting of the Lal Bagh Foreign Missionary Society of Methodist Episcopal Churches. It was revealed when the organization of Unity Church celebrated Founders' Day at the home of Mrs. Theodor G. White Monday evening.

Women of thirty churches had been invited to attend the organization meeting, but, in spite of the fact that it was held on March 23, inclement weather kept all but a few from attending. These eight women who braved the elements at Boston, Mass., to attend the first meeting were represented by the characters in a playlet, "The Founders."

Characters in the playlet were portrayed by Mrs. Harold Owens, as Mrs. Clementina Butler; Mrs. Thelma Adams as Mrs. Lois Parker; Mrs. L. A. Washburn as Mrs. Stoddard; Mrs. Henkle as Mrs. Rick; Mrs. B. F. Thomas as Mrs. Kingsbury; Miss Georgia Swain as Mrs. Flanders; Mrs. Ernest Beatty as Mrs. Merrill; Mrs. H. C. Aultman as Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Wilbur Street as Mrs. Smith, the woman who intended to go but the storm detained her.

Mrs. M. W. Monroe gave a very interesting account of attending the fiftyth anniversary ten years ago at Boston, Mass., in the home church. Mrs. Parker was the only founder present and was then 83.

In October 1929 at Columbus, O., the sixtieth anniversary will be celebrated and elaborate plans are in store for the meeting. The costumes of these eight women founders and other collections of beautiful things from the foreign fields will be on display.

Mrs. J. J. Stout presented the last chapter of the study book "Friends of Africa," using pictures to describe the chapter. She used forty-eight different pictures showing the conditions of pagan and then Christian Africa.

Miss Wella Shipley had charge of the devotionals and Miss Edith Robinson gave several readings.

Mrs. White was assisted in serving coffee and sandwiches by Mrs. Lester Buell, Mrs. B. F. Thomas, Mrs. George Stokes, Mrs. M. W. Monroe, Mrs. Ed. Hunt, Mrs. Henkle and Miss Ebricht.

There were about thirty-five members and three guests present. The next meeting will be the annual thank-offering meeting when Mr. George Eckler and Mrs. J. P. White will speak.

ARRANGE FAREWELL FOR MISSIONARY

Those who attended the affair were: Mrs. John Eavey, and the Misses Beebe, Martha Jean Eavey, Naomi Ford, Martha Conkila, Thelma Mahmeister, Dena Watkins, Clara Merriman, Edith Kogler, Frances Whittington, Margaret Needel and the hosts.

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Kepp to Mr. Forrest Reese, Saturday, February 23. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. Dresler of Richmond Ind.

Mrs. Minnie Reese, north of Alpha, entertained a group of friends at her home, Monday evening, with a birthday and wedding dinner. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Reese, Mrs. Daniel Cyphers and children, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wilson of Dayton and the hosts.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE CREATOR GIVES—I have made the earth, the man and the beast that are upon the ground, by my great power and by my outstretched arm, and have given it unto whom it seemed meet unto me.—Jeremiah 27:5.

KEEPING HOMES UP TO DATE

The art of house and home building has not lagged behind the other arts of living. The improvement in structural methods is only less impressive than the advance that has been made in furnishing homes for beauty and convenience. Science is constantly adding to safety and economy in construction. Art adds as constantly to decorations and appointments. Styles change in homes, as in everything else. One must know the latest offerings on the market or lost step with progress. The wise automobile prospect looks over all the available models before he buys. The man or woman intending to purchase or build or furnish a home cannot afford to be less industrious in discovering what is to be had.

A house does not make a home. What it does make is a place where a home can exist; and the more attractive the nest the more likely is the home within it to be contented and happy. This is true both for the wife, who has to spend much of her life at home; and for the husband, who has less inducement to spend his time elsewhere, when he has a comfortable and cozy establishment to return to after office hours. The importance of taking advantage of every physical device for making home life more agreeable is enhanced by the fact that American homes are being subjected today to new and heavy strains.

The possession of an individual dwelling place may not in itself make a man a better citizen; yet it cannot fail to encourage him to take a livelier interest in civic affairs, which is one manifestation of good citizenship. The man who owns his own home takes a proprietary interest in his city and is more vigilant as to how it is conducted, with respect to protection, taxation and public improvements. The ownership of a plot of ground upon which no person may trespass without his permission gives a citizen an independence he cannot feel as long as he may be "thrown out of house and home" at the end of the month. A city of homes is a permanence.

GETTING REAL RESULTS

Under the budget system which has been in force for eight years, the Federal Government has been placed on a sound basis of efficiency and unified control.

In June, 1921, when the budget system went into effect, the entire Government structure was permeated with extravagance. Expenditures for that fiscal year, exclusive of debt reduction, were about $5,000,000,000; interest charge alone was more than $1,000,000,000, and outstanding indebtedness was nearly $24,000,000,000.

Each succeeding year has brought an ever-increasing improvement in the business of the government. Expenditures have diminished until in 1927, exclusive of amount applied to debt reduction, they were below the $3,000,000,000 mark, or $2,000,000,000 less than in 1921. The public debt has been reduced $6,667,000,000 with a total saving in interest alone from this and refunding operations of $963,000,000.

Four reductions in taxes have returned to the people approximately $2,000,000,000 a year which would have been required had the revenue act of 1918 remained in force. Two and one-half million people have been entirely relieved of all Federal taxation.

With the Federal government leading the way in reducing the cost of its affairs, thereby lowering taxes, it is now up to states and counties to follow suit.

Your BROADWAY
By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK.—A group of do. song builders were talking shop again last night, and one of them remarked that most songs clicked because they contained a fascinating or contagious line in the chorus. He mentioned "B. L. Heaven" and that ditty "Just Molly and me—and the baby makes three," and added that the most beautiful line in the more recent numbers was in "To gether," the line being: "And we'd both pretend—it would never end..."

Billy Rose's "In the Middle of the Night" hit was helped by the line: "In the middle of a moment you and I forgot what no meant," which was not permitted in the sheet music, the copies containing this line: "Every moment had its charms, dear, when I held you in my arms, dear."

The vaudeville warblers, however, offered the original version, which sent the listeners out hasting to the nearest music store.

KIBBITZ DEFINITIONS
Harry Reichenbach forwards a list of Kibbitzers. Their Origin and What They Do. The first kibbitzer, says Reichenbach, was the fifth man of a four-handed game of anything.
A kibbitzer is the type, who, when the police are uncertain as to who broke the window in the old factory building, indicated the guilty party, and did it so often his fingers became pointed.
A kibbitzer is a human parenthesis, which means something you can get along with or without.

The Way

World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

BEST USE FOR A NAVY

Nansen, famous Arctic explorer, asks for assistance of the U. S. navy in arranging for the flight of the Zeppelin to the far north. That suggests the thought that since we are to keep up such a magnificent navy—fifteen new cruisers and an airplane carrier just ordered—the best possible use that can be made of this multi-million dollar machinery is in the interests of science and research. A great deal of scientific research is conducted by the navy department now. There is vastly more done in the way of exploration, coast surveys, charming, deep sea fishing and the like. So long as the common people have to pay the taxes to keep up this terrifying navy, it is to be hoped warships can be made to serve some good cause other than a gesture of protection. And yet one can't help thinking of the school houses that could be built with one-third-million dollar warships.

EXCHANGE

The exchange of students, journalists, college teachers, among the nations is one of the most vital agencies for the preservation of peace. Rhodes scholarships in Oxford and the exchange of professors that goes on between Harvard and European universities, the practice of sending English reporters to work on American newspapers and vice versa, are all of more value than old-fashioned diplomacy. The most hopeful figures are the figures that tell of the thousands who go abroad each year for travel, observation, and study. Steamboats are great peace bringers.

THE LEGION

Speaking in a recent membership campaign James F. Barton, of the national staff of the American Legion, said: "The American Legion, the citizen's soldier of America, organized for the good of America, can look back upon its ten years of existence without shame and can look forward without fear."

These are worthy words and true. The American Legion is an organized political power. It stands for citizenship rather than politics. Made up of men in the very best years of manhood it furnishes a highly vitalized and glowing example to youth. Its traditions are honorable, its aims idealistic, its influence in American life highly satisfying.

HOW ABOUT WOMEN?

Professor Anthony Blanks, University of California, reaches the big by declaring in a speech to wit:

"Women will be the rulers of the next generation.
"Two-thirds of the great world leaders in the next few centuries will be women."

"The eternal struggle between the sexes is being won rapidly by women and a return to the patriarchal rule is inevitable."

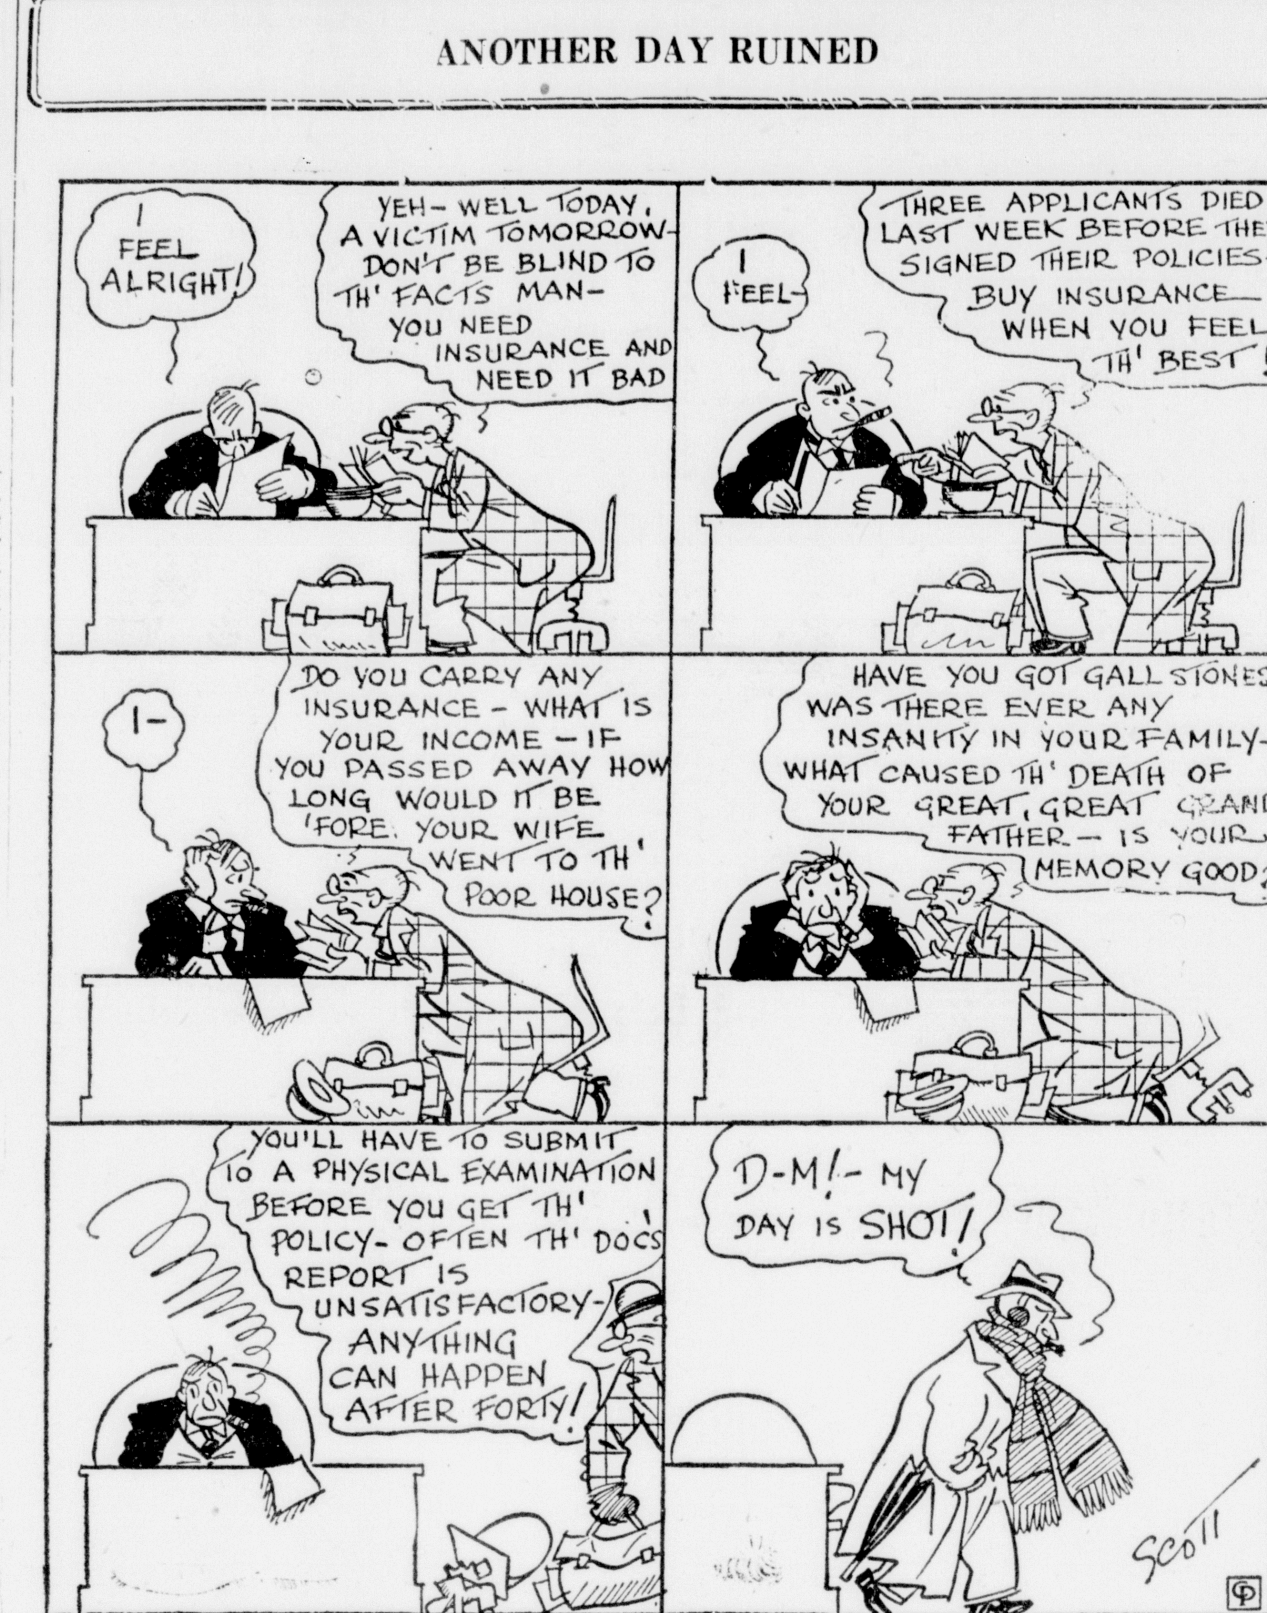

He may be right. And yet—Blanks is a suggestive name for a man who flies such apparently hot soap?

(William M. Jardine was born in Oneida county, Idaho, Jan. 16, 1879. He was graduated from the Agricultural college of Utah, and later studied in the graduate school of the University of Illinois. He is the holder of honorary degrees from several universities. Working on the ranches of Idaho as a youth, Jardine afterwards taught agriculture at Utah and later at Michigan Agricultural college. From 1918 to 1925 he was president of Kansas State Agricultural college and in the latter year was appointed secretary of agriculture.)

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

She is a hard type to name, this dangerously lovely type, Lorelei does not suit her unless she is decidedly blonde. When she is dark and seductive, as she very often she might, perhaps, be called Lilith, who lived before Lorelei and was even more strongly alluring. But fair or dark, this woman charms, whether she is leading men on to their sorrow, or merely leading them on.

A few years ago, before she was either Lilith or Lorelei, she probably wore a tiger skin and lay, waiting patiently, at the door of her cave, in a glorious, tawny sprawl. She knew her strength then, as she knows it now, but her modern methods are far more subtle.

She is a sophisticate today, who uses every means she has to make herself irresistible. Whether she is tall or short, she is untriacially fine. Not thin. Slender, slender and rounded as ever, watchful diet and exercise can make her. And she is healthy, even though she often gives the impression of languor. For real vital health is the surest way to personal charm and attraction.

Her skin is soft and perfectly smooth, free from nervous lines and the signs of worry. It takes care and knowledge to keep it that way, but the modern Lorelei is painstaking.
If her coloring is generally dark, she wears her hair in a sleek, smooth coiffure, as daringly smart as she can. If blonde, she may wave it, in clever, wide waves, still keeping her hair dressing simple.

Her clothes are the very last note in fashion, and are worn with sophisticated assurance. This woman may go in for the daring effects, for her figure and personality suit them.
In colors she makes use of bizarre, exotic tones, wearing all shades of red and magenta. She avoids pastels, almost entirely, but chooses the vivid off-shades to good advantage. And either all-white or all-black, she is striking when she decides to adorn them.

In make-up, the Lorelei never errs. To begin with, she knows the value of a proper make-up foundation. A liquid cream of silky smoothness is the base over which she powders and rouges. Her powder, if her hair and eyes are dark and her skin not deeply olive, may be a pale cream or even a gardenia-white, to accent the impression of contrast.
When she is blonde she uses a tawny shade, in ochre or mauve-tint. Cheek rouge she may forego entirely, if the contour of her face is perfect. If not, she uses a bright cream rouge in the smart granular color, blending it in on her powder foundation in the spot she wishes to emphasize.

Lip rouge she wears always, in the most vivid of bright lip tenses. And she shadows her eyes cleverly with the proper shade of cream eye shadow. Day and evening she darkens her eyebrows and lashes with mascara but she uses it discreetly, for she knows that too much mascara is worse, for her type, than not enough. Even a Lorelei may over-estimate her power in daring, although the true Lorelei never does.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The two-trouser suit is one of the evil influences with which America's present-day textile industry is compelled to contend, as recently complained by witnesses before a congressional tariff experts—the ways and means committee of the house of representatives.
Twin trappers, the woolen goods manufacturers' representatives explained, undoubtedly do extend the life span of a suit of clothes.

True, it takes more wool to make two pairs than it takes to make one, but in the long run the wearer has to have two pairs anyway; by getting them both at once, to match the same coat and vest, he is tempted to make the coat and vest last longer than he otherwise would—and, tempted, frequently he falls.
The textile folk did not ask pro-

game birds as a food supply and primarily as an incentive to the healthful sport, outdoor study and recreational activity so essential in the development of a sturdy American manhood.
The act virtually guarantees to all generations of Americans yet to come an undiminished share of that marvelous heritage of bird life which nature has bestowed upon our country. Americans may well call down blessings upon the heads of those whose love of nature, whose far-sightedness, and whose practical common sense generously exercised in the adjustment of a difficult problem have made a splendid law possible.

Thus it will be seen that a session of the house ways and means committee, which is getting ready to introduce our new tariff bill soon after Mr. Hoover becomes president, is not the dull, prosy proceeding that the uninitiated might imagine.
It has plenty of high lights.
For example, who would suppose that a big row could be developed over the import tax on carillons?
Yet just such a row did develop.

The 40 per cent carillon import was objected to by certain churches and colleges which want to install sets of chimes. They asserted that, as none are made in America, there is no sense in making them cost so much.
By the very next train delegations of bell founders began to arrive, to protest that they could furnish carillons by the gross if Congress would bar foreign competition out.

The ways and means committee is a big body—twenty-five members. Its committee room, in the house of representatives office building, is nearly as imposing as the supreme court chamber.

Right there the resemblance ends.
The supreme court's deliberations are decorous beyond the power of words to express.

The ways and means committee fights like cats and dogs. To Chairman Willis C. Hawley of Oregon and Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, for instance, the tariff is a well-nigh divine institution. It is a "robber tariff" to the committee's ranking Democratic member, Congressman John N. Garner of Texas, and his fellow Jeffersonians.

Just now the committee is endeavoring to crack a mighty hard nut.

It hopes to frame up a form of protection that will give the farmer higher prices for everything he has to sell, without making him pay still higher ones for everything he has to buy.
Congressman Ewin L. Davis of Tennessee, a pessimistic Democrat, gazed cynically into the committee room the other day, as the members toiled at their problem. "For every nickel that the farmer gets out of that tariff bill," he predicted, "I'll bet he puts up a dollar in old cash."

He Reduces His Weight and Increases His Hair

"I have your book, Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories, and in about six weeks lost from 190 to 174—16 pounds. My wife thinks I should stop at 170, and I agree with her. But according to your table, I should weigh around 154, as my height is 5 feet 8 inches. Of course, if the weight of my clothes, shoes, etc., was deducted, I would weigh less than 174, probably 168 or less.
"What I want to know is if, when I reach 170 pounds dressed, I then eat 2,310 calories a day (sedentary occupation, although I have to travel around and inspect real estate), will that number of calories maintain me at 170 pounds? As I figure it, if I eat not more than 2,310 calories a day, I should not gain anything. For years I weighed 132, but after I married I went up to 193. Believe it or not, I ate far more when I was 132 than I ate when I gained the extra 61 pounds.
"Your advice about brushing the hair has helped mine greatly. It makes me puff to do it 200 times without stopping, but I do it just the same. My left arm is sore right now."
MR. F."

If you get down to 165 or 170 without clothes, that would make you about 10 pounds above the average normal weight. Mr. F., but it may be possible that your bones are heavy and you need the extra 10. The number of calories that you will need to keep you normal, will have to be determined from your personal experience. Simply watch your weight, and if you find you are gaining, then cut the number down. For a man of your height, you should be able to keep your weight at normal on around 2,300 calories; but if you have ten extra pounds on you, you will find you will have to continue being careful of your diet, for any excess weight seems to act as an invitation to more.

I smile at the 10 at the end of your caloric computation, for you cannot figure so accurately unless you know the exact ingredients in the foods and have weighed them. For instance, a dish that you count 150 calories today may be served the next day in slightly larger quantity, or it may be a little richer. However, counting the approximate number does the work. (Always give a dish the benefit of a high count when you are not certain, if you wish to lose—and the reverse if you want to gain.)

As far as your gaining when you eat less is concerned, there are two points to be thought of. You got married. Your wife probably served you much richer food than you were in the habit of getting, and though you ate more in quantity before, you had more calories later, for it is the quality as well as the quantity of the food that determines their number. There is another point to be thought of: when you are thin, you need more food than when you are overweight, for you radiate more heat—not having the insulation of the excess fat—and your food is used up more quickly that heat. Then every move you make probably has more pep in it; this also uses up more calories.

It is interesting to know that you got good results with the scalp exercises. I believe that baldness and thinning hair can be prevented if sufficient care is taken of the scalp and diet.

For those who are interested, we have a pamphlet containing inquiry as well as the gain and loss, and an article on the care of the hair and scalp.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

So many little girls write me that they are thinking of getting married. And so many young wives who are unhappy also write me. It's pitiful to think of little girls of 14 and 16 marrying. They think they are, oh so much in love, and nothing can convince them that they are not old enough and mature enough to know their own minds. Time and again a girl puts up her heart to me, ending with: "It's not puppy love, Virginia Lee." Poor babies. If they could only look ahead a few years and see themselves as frustrated young women thrust into life with no preparation, and wishing, oh, so hard, that someone or something could have prevented that too early marriage.

One of these child wives writes me and asks my advice about getting a divorce. She and her husband have separated because of his cruelty. He was married when she was 14 and is now 18.

INTROUBLE: It would be best for you to go to a court of domestic relations and ask advice. You are very wise not to go with men friends until something is settled about a divorce. This girl friend you speak of does not seem very trusting, but she may be in love with the young man and so, possibly, may be excused, as they are not free to be his companions. Try to be true to the right path, dear, and I hope your troubles will soon be over and you will be a happy woman, and will do what you can to discourage other little girls from marrying as young as you did.

"BROKEN HEARTED" wants me to tell "Wondering Boy" that she has been making "a terrible fool" of herself and is sorry. "I have been hurt just as bad as he has," she says, and hopes he will come back to her. "Wondering Boy" couldn't understand his girl friend's changed attitude and was very much hurt by it. We can only hope he sees this and that "Broken Hearted" really is the girl in question.

"UNDECIDED" is 16 and writes at too great length to print. She is contemplating matrimony, but is undecided which of two boys who love her is the right one. They are considerably older than she.

Marry neither. Undecided. Make up your mind you are much too young to marry, and go to school and learn all you can and have a good time before you take on your well the responsibilities of marriage.

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE VINCENT

A WILLING WAITRESS
Miss Polly had made an impression on Mr. Parrot by telling him how clever she thought him.

"Would you like to learn a trick or two?" asked the bird, flattered by her praise, and puffing out his chest as far as it would go. "Well, I'll think about it. I might open a class in the sycamore tree and give lessons every fine afternoon."
"With nuts and cookie butts, or pay you?" asked Peter, curiously.
"With nuts and cookie butts," of course, my dear fellow. What could be better? I'd do almost anything for a walnut, for instance."

"Hurrah, I have a great idea! Every time I show a parrot how to whistle or bark, that parrot shall go and gather nuts, and what is more he shall pick out the meats for me." Mr. Parrot smacked his beak at the thought. Miss Parrot nodded. "I'll see you," she said, "right over there. I will go and get it for you right now. No sooner said than done. Off Miss Parrot started.

Mr. Parrot winked one eye at Peter.
"That's the way to treat the ladies, my boy," said he. "Make them think you're the most wonderful thing in the world, and there is nothing they will not do for you. Here comes Miss Polly back again. Beautiful bird, isn't she? Strange I never noticed her before."

"And I'll open it, too, for you," Miss Parrot nodded, and that was just what she was about doing. Cracking the shell with her strong beak, the willing waitress held the nut firmly with her left foot and picked out the choice morsels of meat with her beak, giving them to Mr. Parrot. That selfish bird never even suggested that she save a bit for herself, but cobbled them all down and chuckling with delight over the tidbits.

Mr. Parrot was busy listening to all the fine things that Miss Parrot was saying to him, and Miss Parrot on her part had neither eyes nor ears for any one else.

"I've got a clever friend," so the boy felt quite out of it. Before long Peter grew weary of hearing the two birds chattering. They were not paying one bit of attention to him. "Well," said he to himself first and then aloud: "It looks to me as if this was a case of 'two is company and three is a crowd.' I Guess I'll run away."
Peter might as well have spoken to the man in the moon for all the answer he got. The birds kept on billing and cooing and telling each other how beautiful they were, so with a shrug of his shoulders Peter gave up all hope of even getting them to take their eyes off one another long enough to say good-by to him. Off he went and left them.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE CREATOR GIVES—I have made the earth, the man and the beast that are upon the ground, by my great power and by my outstretched arm, and have given it unto whom it seemed meet unto me.—Jeremiah 27:5.

KEEPING HOMES UP TO DATE

The art of house and home building has not lagged behind the other arts of living. The improvement in structural methods is only less impressive than the advance that has been made in furnishing homes for beauty and convenience. Science is constantly adding to safety and economy in construction. Art adds as constantly to decorations and appointments. Styles change in homes, as in everything else. One must know the latest offerings on the market or lost step with progress. The wise automobile prospect looks over all the available models before he buys. The man or woman intending to purchase or build or furnish a home cannot afford to be less industrious in discovering what is to be had.

A house does not make a home. What it does make is a place where a home can exist; and the more attractive the nest the more likely is the home within it to be contented and happy. This is true both for the wife, who has to spend much of her life at home; and for the husband, who has less inducement to spend his time elsewhere, when he has a comfortable and cozy establishment to return to after office hours. The importance of taking advantage of every physical device for making home life more agreeable is enhanced by the fact that American homes are being subjected today to new and heavy strains.

The possession of an individual dwelling place may not in itself make a man a better citizen; yet it cannot fail to encourage him to take a livelier interest in civic affairs, which is one manifestation of good citizenship. The man who owns his own home takes a proprietary interest in his city and is more vigilant as to how it is conducted, with respect to protection, taxation and public improvements. The ownership of a plot of ground upon which no person may trespass without his permission gives a citizen an independence he cannot feel as long as he may be "thrust out of house and home" at the end of the month. A city of homes is a permanence.

GETTING REAL RESULTS

Under the budget system which has been in force for eight years, the Federal Government has been placed on a sound basis of efficiency and unified control.

In June, 1921, when the budget system went into effect, the entire Government structure was permeated with extravagance. Expenditures for that fiscal year, exclusive of debt reduction, were about $5,000,000,000; interest charge alone was more than $1,000,000,000, and outstanding indebtedness was nearly $24,000,000,000.

Each succeeding year has brought an ever-increasing improvement in the business of the government. Expenditures have diminished until in 1927, exclusive of amount applied to debt reduction, they were below the $3,000,000,000 mark, or $2,000,000,000 less than in 1921. The public debt has been reduced $6,667,000,000 with a total saving in interest alone from this and refunding operations of $963,000,000.

Four reductions in taxes have returned to the people approximately $2,000,000,000 a year which would have been required had the revenue act of 1918 remained in force. Two and one-half million people have been entirely relieved of all Federal taxation.

With the Federal government leading the way in reducing the cost of its affairs, thereby lowering taxes, it is now up to states and counties to follow suit.

Your BROADWAY

By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK.—A group of song builders were talking shop again last night, and one of them remarked that most songs clicked because they contained a fascinating or confusing line in the chorus. He mentioned "Blue Heaven" and that ditty's "Just Molly and me—and the baby makes three," and added that the most beautiful line in the more recent numbers was in "Together," the line being: "And we'd both pretend—it would never end."

Billy Rose's "In the Middle of the Night" hit was helped by the line, "In the middle of a moment you and I forgot what no meant," which was not permitted in the sheet music, the copies containing this line: "Every moment had its charms, dear, when I held you in my arms, dear."

The vaudeville warblers, however, offered the original version, which sent the listeners out hastening to the nearest music store.

KIBITZER DEFINITIONS
Harry Reichenbach forwards a list of Kibitzers. Their Origin and What They Do. The first kibitzer, says Reichenbach, was the fifth man of a four-handed game of anything.

A kibitzer is the type, who, when the police are uncertain as to who broke the window in the old factory building, indicated the guilty party, and did so often the fingers became pointed. A kibitzer is a human parenthesis, which means something you can get along with or without.

BEST USE FOR A NAVY

Nansen, famous Arctic explorer, asks for assistance of the U. S. navy in arranging for the flight of the Zepplin to the far north. That suggests the thought that since we are to keep up such a magnificent navy—fifteen new cruisers and an airplane carrier just ordered—the best possible use that can be made of this multi-million dollar machinery is in the interests of science and research. A great deal of scientific research is conducted by the navy department now. There is vastly more done in the way of exploration, coast surveys, charting, deep sea fishing and the like. So long as the common people have to pay the taxes to keep up this terrifying navy, it is to be hoped warships can be made to serve some good cause other than a gesture of protection. And yet one can't help thinking of the school houses that could be built with one-third million dollar warship.

EXCHANGE

The exchange of students, journalists, college teachers, among the nations is one of the most vital agencies for the preservation of peace. Rhodes scholarships in Oxford and the exchange of professors that goes on between Harvard and European universities, the practice of sending English reporters to work on American newspapers and vice versa, are all of more value than old-fashioned diplomacy. The most hopeful figures are the figures that tell of the thousands who go abroad each year for travel, observation and study. Steamboats are great peace bringers.

THE LEGION

Speaking in a recent membership campaign James F. Barton, of the national staff of the American Legion, said: "The American Legion, the citizen soldiery of America, organized for the good of America, can look back upon its ten years of existence without shame and can look forward without fear."

These are worthy words and true. The American Legion is an organized political power. It stands for citizenship rather than politics. Made up of men in the very best years of manhood it furnishes a highly vitalized and glowing example to youth. Its traditions are honorable, its aims idealistic, its influence in American life highly satisfying.

HOW ABOUT WOMEN?

Professor Anthony Dauds, University of California, reaches the big type by declaring in a speech to wit:

"Women will be the rulers of the next generation."

"Two-thirds of the great world leaders in the next few centuries will be women."

"The eternal struggle between the sexes is being won rapidly by women and a return to the patriarchal rule is inevitable."

He may be right. And yet—Is there a suggestive name for a man who fixes such apparently hot soap?

Who's Who and Timely Views

NEW MIGRATORY-BIRD REFUGEE BILL LAUDED

By Dr. WILLIAM M. JARDINE

Secretary of Agriculture

(William M. Jardine was born in Oneida county, Idaho, Jan. 16, 1879. He was graduated from the Agricultural college of Utah, and later studied in the graduate school of the University of Illinois. He is the holder of honorary degrees from several universities. Working on the ranches of Idaho as a youth, Jardine after wards taught agriculture at Utah and later at Michigan Agricultural college. From 1918 to 1925 he was president of Kansas State Agricultural college and in the latter year was appointed secretary of agriculture.)

The Norbeck-Anderson migratory-bird refuge bill, which has just been enacted into law by a unanimous vote of both branches of congress and approved by President Coolidge, is one of the most important wild-life conservation measures ever written on the statute books of any nation.

The outstanding exception is the related migratory-bird treaty act of 1918, which the present law is designed to supplement.

Both laws were passed to carry out the obligations of the United States under the treaty with Great Britain to protect the wild birds that fly back and forth each year from Canada.

The new law gives additional force and effect to the earlier measure by providing federal funds for the survey, purchase, and establishment of large areas throughout the entire country to be maintained as inviolate sanctuaries—feeding, nesting and resting grounds where forever the migrating species of birds may enjoy complete protection.

The measure as passed is a national acknowledgment of the importance of the birds of America as aids in the development of agriculture. It acknowledges also the will of the American people to give adequate protection to the beautiful and harmless creatures that are heard in season from every forest, copse and hedgerow in the land. And it further recognizes the importance of the migratory game birds as a food supply and primarily as an incentive to the healthful sport, outdoor study and recreational activity so essential in the development of a sturdy American manhood.

The act virtually guarantees to all generations of Americans yet to come an undiminished share of that marvelous heritage of bird life which nature has bestowed upon our country. Americans may well call down blessings upon the heads of those whose love of nature, whose far-sightedness, and whose practical common sense generously exercised in the adjustment of a difficult problem have made a splendid law possible.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENE RUBINSTEIN

She is a hard type to name. Her clothes are the very last note in fashion, and are worn with sophisticated assurance. This woman may go in for the daring effects, for her figure and personality suit them.

In colors she makes use of bizarre, exotic tones, wearing all shades of red and magenta. She avoids pastels, almost entirely, but chooses the vivid off-shades to good advantage. And either all-white or all-black, she is striking when she decides to adorn them.

In make-up, the Lorelei never errs. To begin with, she knows the value of a proper make-up foundation. A liquid cream of silky smoothness is the base over which she powders and rouges.

Her powder, if her hair and eyes are dark and her skin not deeply olive, may be a pale cream or even a gardenia-white, to accent the impression of contrast.

When she is blonde she uses a tawny shade, in ochre or mauve tints. Cheek rouge she may forego entirely, if the contour of her face is perfect. If not, she uses a bright cream rouge in the smart granular color, blending it in on her powder foundation in the spot she wishes to emphasize.

Lip rouge she wears always, in the muted vivid of bright lip tints. And she shadows her eyes cleverly with the proper shade of cream eye shadow. Day and evening she darkens her eyebrows and lashes with mascara but he uses it discretely, for she knows that too much mascara is worse for her type, than not using any.

Even a Lorelei may over-estimate her power in daring, although the true Lorelei never does.

Just now the committee is endeavoring to crack a mighty hard nut.

It hopes to frame up a form of protection that will give the farmer higher prices for everything he has to sell, without making him pay still higher ones for everything he has to buy.

Congressman Edwin L. Davis of Tennessee, a pessimistic Democrat, sated cynically into the committee room the other day, as the members toiled at their problem. "For every nickel that the farmer gets out of that tariff bill," he predicted, "I'll bet he puts up a dollar in old cash."

The supreme court's deliberations are decorous beyond the power of words to express.

The ways and means committee flights like cats and dogs.

To Chairman Willis C. Hawley of Oregon and Representative Alben T. Treadway of Massachusetts, for instance, the tariff is a well-nigh divine institution. It is a "robber tariff" to the committee's ranking Democratic member, Congressman John N. Garner of Texas, and his fellow Jeffersonians.

One of these child wives writes me and asks my advice about getting a divorce. She and her husband have separated because of his cruelty. He was married when she was 14 and is now 18.

INTROUBLE: It would be best for you to go to a court of domestic relations and ask advice. You are very wise not to go with men friends until something is settled about a divorce. This girl friend you speak of does not seem very trustworthy, but she may be in love with the young man and possibly, may be excused, as you are not free to be his companion. Try to tread steadily in the right path, dear, and I hope your troubles will soon be over and you will be a happy woman, and will do what you can to discourage other little girls from marrying as young as you did.

"BROKEN HEARTED" wants me to tell "Wondering Boy" that she has been making "a terrible fool" of herself and is sorry. "I have been hurt just as bad as he has," she says, and hopes he will come back to her. "Wondering Boy" couldn't understand his girl friend's changing attitude and was very much hurt by it. We can only hope he sees this and that "Broken Hearted" really is the girl in question.

"UNDECIDED" is 16 and writes at too great length to print. She is contemplating matrimony, but is undecided whether of two boys who love her is the right one. "They are considerably older than she."

Marry neither, Undecided. Make up your mind you are much too young to marry, and go to school and learn all you can and have a good time before you take on yourself the responsibilities of marriage.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

He Reduces His Weight and Increases His Hair

"I have your book, Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories, and in about six weeks lost from 190 to 174—16 pounds. My wife thinks I should stop at 170, and I agree with her. But according to your table, I should weigh around 154, as my height is 5 feet 8 inches. Of course, if the weight of my clothes, shoes, etc., was deducted, I would weigh less than 174, probably 168 or less."

"What I want to know is if, when I reach 170 pounds a day, I then eat 2,310 calories a day (sedentary occupation, although I have to travel around and inspect real estate), will that number of calories maintain me at 170 pounds? As I figure it, if I eat not more than 2,310 calories a day, I should not gain anything. For years I weighed 132, but after I married I went up to 193. Believe it or not, I ate far more when I was 132 than I ate when I gained up to 193!"

"Your advice about brushing the hair has helped mine greatly. It makes me puff to do it 200 times without stopping, but I do it just the same. My left arm is sore right now. MR. F."

If you get down to 165 or 170 without clothes, that would make you about 10 pounds above the average normal weight, Mr. F., but it may be possible that your bones are heavy and you need the extra 10. The number of calories that you will need to keep you normal, will have to be determined from your personal experience. Simply watch your weight, and if you find you are gaining, then cut the number down. For a man of your height, you should be able to keep your weight at normal on around 2,300 calories; but if you have ten extra pounds on you, you will find you will have to continue being careful of your diet, for any excess weight seems to act as an invitation to more.

I smile at the 10 at the end of your caloric computation, for you cannot figure so accurately unless you know the exact ingredients in the foods and have weighed them. For instance, a dish that you count 150 calories today may be served the next day in slightly larger quantity, or it may be a little richer. However, counting the approximate number does the work. (Always give a dish the benefit of a high count when you are not certain, if you wish to lose—and the reverse if you want to gain.)

As far as your gaining when you eat less is concerned, there are two points to be thought of. You got married. Your wife probably served you much richer food than you were in the habit of getting, and though you ate more in quantity before, you ate more calories later, for it is the quality as well as the quantity of the food that determines their number. There is another point to be thought of: when you are thin, you need more food than when you are overweight, for you radiate more heat—not having the insulation of the excess fat—and your food is used up to produce that heat. Then every move you make probably has more pep in it; this also uses up more calories.

It is interesting to know that you got good results with the scalp exercises. I believe that baldness and thinning hair can be prevented if sufficient care is taken of the scalp and diet.

For those who are interested, we have a pamphlet containing instructions on how to gain and lose, and an article on the care of the hair and scalp.

Stivers High School, Dayton, 1928 state basketball champions, will meet Hamilton Catholic High in the opening round of the Southwestern Ohio district semifinals at the Rookery High School gymnasium in Dayton Friday afternoon.

Dayton Steele drew Cincinnati Woodward as its opponent, while Wilmington will play Dayton Kiser and Dayton Chamaine will meet Cincinnati Withrow.

The four Dayton teams survived the preliminary rounds in the northern section of this district at Springfield last Friday and Saturday. The other four weathered the elimination games at Cincinnati.

Under the rules governing the tournament, no two teams from the same section of the district could meet in the opening round of the semifinals.

Only one upset occurred in the Springfield tourney, that is, in the Class A division, Stivers, Steele and Kiser came through as expected, but Roosevelt met a tarter in Chamaine and lost.

In the Class B semifinals at Roosevelt this week end the same arrangement prevails under which no two teams from the same section may meet the opening round. The five representatives from the Springfield tourney, Centerville, St. Paris, Pittsburgh, Monroe and Oakwood, will draft their opponents from Otterbein, Home, Eaton, Westchester and McGuffey High of Oxford, winners at Cincinnati.

Antioch College Division "A" and Division "B" basketball teams have terminated a disappointing season with a combined record of having won one game against ten defeats. Division "A" lost six games while "B" Division lost four and recorded one victory, that over Cedarville College, 34 to 31.

Antioch teams were outscored by opponents, 481 to 280 in the eleven games played. Here is the season's record:

Division "A"
Antioch 25, Cedarville 42.
Antioch 19, Capital 42.
Antioch 25, Rio Grande 28.
Antioch 21, Findlay 67.
Antioch 37, Wilmington 43.
Antioch 21, Findlay 61.
Division "B"
Antioch 39, Capital 47.

THREE BOYS ADMIT
ROBBERY SERIES

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Three youths under arrest here today have confessed, according to police, that they committed six robberies in Columbus, two in Lancaster and stole eleven automobiles.

The prisoners are Walter Horn, 19; Arthur Williams, 18, and Roy Spriggs, 19, all of Columbus. They were arrested by Corporal Spencer and Patrolmen Amrine and Gardner while driving a stolen car.

The boys said they robbed the Parkway Restaurant, Lancaster, last night and the West Side Confectionery, Lancaster, Sunday night.

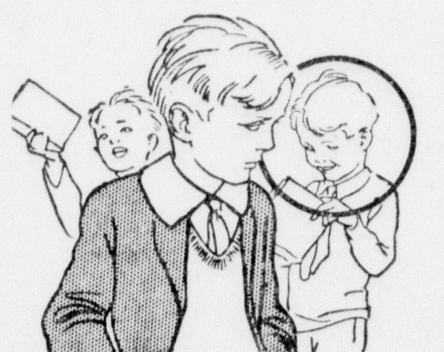

BILLIARDS

The popular sport of billiards is being revived in Xenia, largely due to the efforts of Otto Hornick, one-time city champion, and arrangements have been completed for a billiard tournament at the Recreation Parlors to decide the city championship.

The tourney will be inaugurated with matches scheduled for Tuesday night this week.

Twenty entries have been received for the event and four players will participate each night. Each entrant will be required to meet every other competitor once and the play will continue for twenty consecutive nights, excluding Sundays.

George Dodds, J. B. Bice, Howard Donley and Arnold Boxwell are booked to compete Tuesday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. W. Crawford Craig, George Little, A. H. Finlay and Charles Fisher are scheduled for Wednesday night.

Does his mother realize?

Considerate mothers will act at once.

Constipation will blunt the keenest intellect, and many a child is claimed as "dull" through bowels failing to act regularly. They need mother's watchful care.

If your child is listless, dull and out-of-sorts, it means that the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Just give a dose of "California Fig Syrup" and see how all the sour bile coming from the bowels, and the child is bright and energetic again. "California Fig Syrup" cleans and regulates the bowels, and insures pure blood, clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and promotes sturdy growth.

To be sure that the Fig Syrup you buy is the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package.

Captures 289 Score As Xenia Piles Up
High Total

William Moorehead, this city, rolling in a special inter-city bowling match between Xenia and Troy all-star teams Saturday night, established a new record for the Recreation alleys here when he recorded a single game of 289.

Moorehead narrowly missed bowling a perfect score of 300, the dream of all bowlers and a feat which has only been accomplished once in Xenia in the last fifteen or more years. After laying in ten straight strikes in his final game, Moorehead made only nine pins on his next attempt, then picked up the extra pin for his record-breaking total.

In his other two games, Bill shot a 246 and a 192 for a grand three-game total of 727, probably the greatest series ever recorded on the new alleys in match play.

Led by Moorehead, the Xenia quintet turned in games of 1,011, 920 and 1,015 for a three-game total of 2,946, defeating the Troy team by 384 pins. Box score:

ANTIOCH LOSES TO
FINDLAY IN FINALE

Playing its final game of a disastrous season, Antioch College basketball team was overwhelmed by Findlay College basketball team by a margin of 61 to 21 on the Findlay floor Monday night.

During the first half the Findlay reserves saw action and when the intermission rolled around the score was close, Findlay leading 19 to 17. In the second chapter Findlay inserted an entirely new team and scored points thick and fast. It was also Findlay's final game.

The Antioch team, which played six games this season, ended without a victory. In a previous game two weeks ago, Findlay rolled up a 67 to 21 victory at Yellow Springs.

Pollock for Findlay and Wilcox for Antioch were high scorers for their respective teams Monday night, each registering fourteen points.

THWART JAIL BREAK FROM AKRON PRISON

AKRON, O., March 5.—A strict ban against gifts for prisoners in the county jail was in effect today after a break had been narrowly averted. Four prisoners, three held for highway robbery, were discovered last night when only a few moments of sawing separated them from freedom.

A tip to Night Jailor John W. Smith by Orville Smith, chief trustee, frustrated the delivery.

The attempted break would have opened the way to escape of twenty-two other prisoners in Range 1.

MANY PUPILS AVOID ABSENTEE MARKS IN FEBRUARY RECORDS

During the month of February more than half—54 per cent to be exact—of the total number of children attending the Xenia public schools, were neither absent nor tardy, it is announced by Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The remaining 46 per cent made up for it, however, by being absent and tardy more often than usual. The percentage of attendance during February was 93.7 as compared with 94.9 during the same month in 1928.

On St. Valentine's Day the number absent in the schools touched the lowest number of the calendar year, ninety-four. Tardiness is on the increase with 240 cases noted in February as compared with 152 in February last year.

Home rooms of Mrs. VanZant and Miss Jacobs tied for the city's highest percentage attendance with 98.5 per cent each. By buildings the percentage attendance was as follows:—Orient Hill 94; Spring Hill 93.6; McKinley, 92.6; Lincoln 92.1; East Jr. High 95.1; Central Jr. High 95; Central Senior High 95.1 and East Senior High 92.4. Moorehead Rolls New Bowling Record Here

ROLLS SINGLE HIGH GAME IN MATCH PLAY WITH TROY BOWLERS

Captures 289 Score As Xenia Piles Up High Total

William Moorehead, this city, rolling in a special inter-city bowling match between Xenia and Troy all-star teams Saturday night, established a new record for the Recreation alleys here when he recorded a single game of 289.

Moorehead narrowly missed bowling a perfect score of 300, the dream of all bowlers and a feat which has only been accomplished once in Xenia in the last fifteen or more years. After laying in ten straight strikes in his final game, Moorehead made only nine pins on his next attempt, then picked up the extra pin for his record-breaking total.

In his other two games, Bill shot a 246 and a 192 for a grand three-game total of 727, probably the greatest series ever recorded on the new alleys in match play.

Led by Moorehead, the Xenia quintet turned in games of 1,011, 920 and 1,015 for a three-game total of 2,946, defeating the Troy team by 384 pins. Box score:

ANTIOCH LOSES TO FINDLAY IN FINALE

Playing its final game of a disastrous season, Antioch College's basketball team was overthrown by Findlay College basketballers by a margin of 61 to 21 on the Findlay floor Monday night.

During the first half the Findlay reserves saw action and when the intermission rolled around the score was close, Findlay leading 19 to 17. In the second chapter Findlay inserted an entirely new team and scored points thick and fast. It was also Findlay's final game.

The Antioch team, which played six games this season, ended with a victory. In a previous game two weeks ago, Findlay rolled up a 67 to 21 victory at Yellow Springs.

Pollock for Findlay and Wilcox for Antioch were high scorers for the respective teams Monday night, each registering fourteen points.

THWART JAIL BREAK FROM AKRON PRISON

AKRON, O., March 5.—A strict ban against gifts for prisoners in the county jail was in effect today after a break had been narrowly averted. Four prisoners, three held for highway robbery, were discovered last night when only a few moments of sawing separated them from freedom.

A tip to Night Jailor John W. Smith by Orvil Smith, chief trusty, frustrated the delivery.

The attempted break would have opened the way to escape of two or three other prisoners in Range 1.

MANY PUPILS AVOID ABSENTEE MARKS IN FEBRUARY RECORDS

During the month of February more than half—54 per cent—of the total number of children attending the Xenia public schools, were neither absent nor tardy, it is announced by Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The remaining 46 per cent made up for it, however, by being absent and tardy more often than usual. The percentage of attendance during February was 93.7 as compared with 94.5 during the same month in 1928.

The total enrollment in the public schools February 21 was 1,926, or sixteen more than at the same time a year ago.

On St. Valentine's Day the number absent in the schools touched the lowest number of the calendar year, ninety-four. Tardiness is on the increase with 240 cases noted in February as compared with 152 in February last year.

Home rooms of Mrs. VanZant and Miss Jacobs tied for the city's highest percentage attendance with 98.5 per cent each. By buildings the percentage attendance was as follows: Orient Hill 94; Spring Hill 93.6; McKinley 92.6; Lincoln 92.1; East Jr. High 95.1; Central Jr. High 95; Central Senior High 95.1 and East Senior High 92.4. By grades the high averages were as follows: first, Miss Keller 95; first and second, Mrs. Stephens 95.1; second, Mrs. Roberts, 96.6; third, Miss Hart, 94.7; fourth, Miss Ambuhl, 97.4; fifth, Miss Jacobs, 98.5; sixth, Mrs. VanZant, 98.5; seventh, Miss Carroll, 96.8; eighth, Miss Harper, 96.5; ninth, Mr. Hargrave, 97.5; tenth, Miss Clark and Miss Schenck, 96; eleventh, Mrs. Nybladh, 96.8 and twelfth, Miss Haynes, 95.8.

FORMER OFFICIAL COMMITS SUICIDE

CLEVELAND, March 5.—Seated in a chair, his head partly blown off by the body of Joseph L. Engelson, former first assistant attorney general of Ohio, was found today in a room at the New Amsterdam Hotel here.

Police said it was a case of suicide.

Miss Mary Tomacek, a maid, discovered the body. Opening the door, Miss Tomacek saw Engelson sitting in the chair and was about to withdraw when she noted a shotgun on the floor.

Police decided that Engelson had placed the butt of the shot gun against a table edge, sat himself in a chair facing it and pulled the trigger.

Friends reported he had been in ill health for some time.

BABE GETS HOMER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 5.—The Babe hit his first home of the season in his first game of practice. After bunting off the first two pitches served him by Floyd Van Pelt yesterday, Ruth drove his first circuit smash into Crescent Lake. Later Ruth drove several other balls close to the lake.

"It usually takes me several days to get my eye on the ball," Ruth said, "but I got the gauge on Van Pelt's delivery right from the start. Last year I couldn't hit a ball for three days and in 1927 it took me a week to start hitting."

Remember This Fight?

BATTLE OF HAS-BEEN

In an effort to provide something different for the boxing fans a Milwaukee, Wis., club in 1913 matched two of the greatest of all time lightweight champions for a 10-round no-decision bout.

One was Battling Nelson, the broken-down Dane, and the other Ad Wolgast, also well past the age where he was a dangerous boxer.

Before a well-filled house of curious customers these two war horses of the padded canvas staggered, on the night of Oct. 13, 1913, through a slow, ludicrous contest that was hooted and booed. Nelson was terrible and Wolgast almost as bad.

At the finish Wolgast was an easy winner, although his punch was gone and he did little damage to Nelson. He showed plenty of gloves and as usual the Battler had no defense and merely soaked up the punishment like a sponge.

Nelson was really pitiful but managed to keep a smile on his battered features from the first bell to the last. His feeble attempts to land a blow were so laughable that he actually drew a cheer now and then.

SWANSON IS HITTER

ORLANDO, Fla., March 5.—Evan Swanson, young outfielder from the Mission Pacific Coast League Club, has served notice with his bat that he is a serious candidate for a regular place in the Cincinnati Reds outfield. He made the longest hit, a triple, in yesterday's practice game in which Pld Purdy's team defeated Hughie Critz's nine 18 to 8.

DISSOLUTION IS SOUGHT IN SUIT; OTHER COURT NEWS

Dissolution of a partnership agreement involving operation of the Cozy Corner Restaurant at 336 E. Main St. is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Roberta Riley against Luther Varner, Riley and Varner and The American Loan Co.

The plaintiff sets forth that she and Varner entered into an agreement August 10, 1921 under which the restaurant business was conducted on a partnership basis by them until June 6, 1928, when she became ill and the business has since been conducted by the defendant.

It is asserted that December 1, 1928 Varner offered to purchase the plaintiff's interest for $700 and that he deposited $133 to bind the contract, but failed to deliver it to her for approval.

They gave a chattel mortgage to the loan company in return for a $100 loan, according to the petition. Charging failure to live up to the conditions of the contract, the plaintiff asks for an accounting of expenses and profits since last June 6, dissolution of the partnership, appointment of a receiver if necessary and a restraining order. Marcus McCallister is attorney for the plaintiff.

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

©1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

Betty Brown, unattractive to men, takes up dancing. At the death of her parents she is compelled to dance for a living, but is driven from one position to another by the unweelcome attentions of men. Her last position is at the Iron Door, night club, from which she is discharged after repulsing the attentions of a city politician. Her friend, George Harris, resents the publication of this story in a scandal sheet and asks her to stay away from his place of business. Her landlady asks her to move, but Andy Adair and Harry Ford laugh over her troubles and ask her to go on a party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

Andy arrived at Betty's house promptly to take her to the party. When she was in his car he said, "Don't crab to party tonight, Betty. These are nice cars, even if they are a little unconventional, if they both work at City Hall and earn their living."

"Why do you suggest I might crab the party?" she asked.

"Oh, I don't know. You are all right sometimes, but other times you seem a regular prude. What's a few kisses, more or less, anyhow?" He laughed.

"I don't mind your kissing me, Andy, but I'm not much for indiscriminate kisses."

"When I took a punch at Dumbert you told me you liked me a little. Just prove it tonight by relaxing. It'll be good for you."

Before she could reply they arrived at the apartment house. He introduced her to two nice-looking girls, who tried to make her feel at home. Doc and the irrepressible Harry arrived a few minutes later, their arms filled with packages which proved to be oranges, gingerale, sardines, crackers, pickles and olives. There was a two-quart bottle of some colorless liquid, which Betty suspected made gin.

"Listen here, you!" commanded Peggy, the taller girl, "I told you your card of admission to this flat was either a side of bacon or a ham. How do you suppose we eat when you aren't here? You will eat and drink all this stuff tonight and leave the apartment with nothing in it but squeeze oranges, empty cans, empty bottles and vain regrets."

"Peg, I tried to bring the bacon or the ham," Harry answered, solemnly, "but the pig I picked was a marathon runner. I ran him till he was too thin to make good ham or bacon and then left him to his own devices, knowing that you would rather see me without bacon than miss me as I did the pig."

"The way you can make gin, stories, you would make a good married man!" laughed Peggy.

"Good night!" Harry picked up his hat. "When a woman begins to talk about marrying me it is time to go."

"I will never marry you when I am sober," assured Peggy, "and I haven't the slightest intention of getting tight tonight."

"Darling, you may kiss me!" cried Harry.

"You are so good to me!" sighed Peggy, putting her arms around him and kissing him long and lingeringly.

The supplies were carried to the kitchenette, where Peggy and Harry remained to make up a drink while the others chatted and listened to the phonograph. Harry appeared with a large cocktail shaker and Peggy with a tray of glasses. When they were filled Andy took two and with a warning look at Betty, handed her one.

She drank with them. As she put down the glass Andy patted her on the back, approvingly.

"How come you aren't dancing tonight?" asked Doc of Betty.

She looked helplessly at Andy, but Harry gave them a humorous explanation of the affair at the Iron Door. They all seemed to think it a huge joke, and said Andy should marry the girl he had rescued, in story-book fashion.

They had another drink to the rest. There was enough left in the shaker for another round of drinks, but Andy commanded: "Pass Betty this time. She is just in from the country, and will pass out if we aren't careful."

"The only one of us who has ever passed out was you at the first dance," jeered Betty. She reached for the cocktail, but Harry reached away saying: "The little girl will put on her dance later. We don't want her kicking any one in the eye."

"Oh, please dance for us!" begged the girls.

"But I have no costume!" objected Betty.

"Put on my bathing suit," suggested Peggy.

"Yes, go on! Give us a dance!" begged Andy.

Remembering what he said about crabbing the party, Betty went into the next room and put on Peggy's red bathing togs. She danced her jazz number to the music of a phonograph record.

She finished and wild applause. Andy pulled her down on his lap, kissed her on the back of the neck, and told her she was wonderful.

She rested a few minutes, and then found a valiz, to which she improvised one of those slow, graceful, floating waltzes. Peggy and her roommate, Sally, insisted that she show them some of the steps. Gathering their skirts out of the way, they both practiced with her until Harry came back with the refilled cocktail shaker.

Betty and Peggy, Andy and Harry sat on a big divan while Sally perched on Doc's lap. They slipped their cocktails. Betty was now a bit dizzy, but she turned to Andy and asked: "As I crabbing your party?"

"You are the world's one best bet!" he assured her, holding her close and kissing her.

Doc and Sally started the music. He held her to him and kissed her from time to time. In a moment Harry and Peggy were also dancing.

"Come on!" Andy put his arm around Betty and tried to pull her to her feet.

"I must get into my clothes!" she said, looking at her bare legs.

"Stay the way you are. You look good!" Andy answered. They began to dance again, and she let Andy pull her to her feet and began to dance with him. She was half embarrassed and half defiant. She had danced publicly with less clothing than she now had on, and tried to justify herself by the fact that the others paid her no attention.

Andy held her close and kissed her now and then as they danced. She gave herself into his arms completely, closing her eyes as objects in the room swayed before her.

The record ended. She stood clasped in Andy's arms, while another was substituted. As they started dancing again someone touched the electric light button, and they danced on by the dim street light reflected from the ceiling. Close pressed to Andy, she wondered why she could not dance on like this forever, forgetting work and care.

The music stopped. Andy sat down in a big chair, pulling her to his lap. No one made a move to re-light the room, Betty could dimly make out one man's figure on the couch, his head in a girl's lap. She stooped low to kiss him. An indistinguishable mass in another chair was the other couple. Betty laughed as she realized that she was on her first petting party. She snuggled down in Andy's arms and threw her head back, giving her lips unrestrainedly. Minutes or hours or years passed. Betty did not know or care. She was growing drowsy, yet she was happy. Her hands wandered around Andy's face, pulling tenderly at a lobe of his ear, touching his cheeks or neck. He held her to him so closely that she could hardly get her breath. Suddenly he jumped to his feet.

"Go in the other room and get dressed!" he commanded, tensely. "We are going home."

"I don't want to go home. I want to stay here and love you!" protested Betty.

AMERICA "CANNED" CIVILIZATION SAYS LEO TOLSTOY'S SON
GAMBHER, O., March 5.—America has developed a "canned" civilization which must progress through only one more stage to reach its downfall, Count Ilya Tolstoy, noted author declared in an address at Kenyon College on "The Life and Works of Leo Tolstoy," his father.
Count Tolstoy, expatriate Russian and now an avowed "citizen of the world," sworn to accept citizenship in no country, is speaking in America in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of his father's birth.
"Canned food, canned music, canned drama in the movies, canned opinion as a result of advertising, canned thought in the newspapers," he said, "all tend to give America a canned complex."
Count Tolstoy believes America is a plutocracy and not a democracy, but that the present condition of the government is to be preferred to the socialist one.
"Democracy leads to overlordship of capitalism," he said. "Capitalism is an evil, but less an evil than is communism. Capitalism is free. Communism is slavery."
Tolstoy said the solution of the evils of capitalism is free corporations, with labor and capital incorporated together in the spirit of "let us work together."
"It is enough to rule one's self without attempting to rule others," he said, adding that America's laboring classes, no longer struggling for existence, "are struggling for more painful things—they are struggling for luxuries."
"Good naturedness is the outstanding characteristic of you Americans—a good naturedness that never falls—until one asks you for a dollar. Then good naturedness falls and you become bachelors," he said.
The count declared the reason for this was because "goodness and money is America's religion."
He denounced the cities as the ruin of American youth and said the far from New York he finds himself, the finer he finds the people to be.
"American youth is extremely nice," he concluded, "but the cities are bent on ruining your fine young men and women. In the great cities the 'follow the leader' force is too great to resist."
"Individuality pales."

Passed Up!
By ROE FULKERSON
©1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

Betty Brown, unattractive to men, takes up dancing. At the death of her parents she is compelled to dance for a living, but is driven from one position to another by the unbecoming attentions of men. Her last position is at the Iron Door, night club, from which she is discharged after repulsing the attentions of a city politician. Her friend, George Harris, resents the publication of this story in a scandal sheet and asks her to stay away from his place of business. Her landlady asks her to move, but Andy Adair and Harry Ford laugh over her troubles and ask her to go on a party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIX
Andy arrived at Betty's house promptly to take her to the party. When she was in his car he said: "Don't crab the party tonight, Betty. These are nice girls, even if they are a little unconventional. They both work at City Hall and earn their living."
"Why do you suggest I might crab the party?" she asked.
"Oh, I don't know. You are all right sometimes, but other times you seem a regular prude. What's a few kisses, more or less, anyhow?" He laughed.
"I don't mind your kissing me, Andy, but I'm not much for indiscriminate kisses."
"When I took a punch at Dabbert you told me you liked me a little. Just prove it tonight by relaxing. It'll be good for you."
Before she could reply they arrived at the apartment house. He introduced her to two nice-looking girls, who tried to make her feel at home. Doc and the irrepressible Harry arrived a few minutes later, their arms filled with packages which proved to be oranges, gingerbread, sandwiches, crackers, pickles and olives. There was a two-quart bottle of some colorless liquid, which Betty suspected to be gin.
"Listen here, you!" commanded Peggy, the taller girl. "I told you your card of admission to this flat was either a side of bacon or a ham. How do you suppose we eat when you aren't here? You will eat and drink all this stuff tonight and leave the apartment with nothing in it but squeeze oranges, empty cans, empty bottles and vain regrets."
"Peg, I tried to bring the bacon or the ham," Harry answered, solemnly, "but the pig I picked was a marathon runner. I ran him till he was too thin to make good him or bacon and then left him to his own devices, knowing that you would rather see me without bacon than miss me as I did the pig."
"The way you can make up stories, you would make a good married man!" laughed Peggy.
"Good night!" Harry picked up his hat. When a woman begins to talk about marrying me it is time to go."
"I will never marry you when I am sober," assured Peggy, "and I haven't the slightest intention of getting tight tonight."
"Darling, you may kiss me!" cried Harry.
"You are so good to me!" sighed Peggy, putting her arms around him and kissing him long and lingeringly.
The supplies were carried to the kitchenette, where Peggy and Harry remained to make up a drink while the others chatted and listened to the phonograph. Harry appeared with a large cocktail shaker and Peggy with a tray of glasses. When they were filled Andy took two and with a warning look at Betty, handed her one.
She drank with them. As she put down the glass Andy patted her on the back, approvingly.
"How come you aren't dancing tonight?" asked Doc of Betty.
She looked helplessly at Andy, but Harry gave them a humorous explanation of the affair at the Iron Door. They all seemed to think it a huge joke, and said Andy should marry the girl he had rescued, in story-book fashion.
They had another drink to the hero, Betty sipping hers with the rest. There was enough left in the shaker for another round of drinks, but Andy commanded: "Pass Betty this time. She is just in from the country, and will pass out if we aren't careful."
"The only one of us who has ever passed out was you at the frat dance!" jeered Betty. She reached for the cocktail, but Harry walked away saying: "The little girl will put on her dance later. We don't want her kicking any one in the eye!"
"Oh, please dance for us!" begged the girls.
"But I have no costume!" objected Betty.
"Put on my bathing suit," suggested Peggy.
"Yes, go on! Give us a dance!" begged Andy.
Remembering what he said about crabbing the party, Betty went into the next room and put on Peggy's red bathing togs. She danced her jazz number to the music of a phonograph record.
Andy pulled her down on his lap, kissed her on the back of the neck, and told her she was wonderful.
She rested a few minutes, and then found a waltz, to which she improvised one of those slow, graceful, floating waltzes. Peggy

DISSOLUTION IS SOUGHT IN SUIT; OTHER COURT NEWS
Dissolution of a partnership agreement involving operation of the Covey Corner Restaurant at 336 E. Main St. is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Roberta Riley against Luther Varner, Riley and Varner and The American Loan Co.
The plaintiff sets forth that she and Varner entered into an agreement August 10, 1921 under which the restaurant business was conducted on a partnership basis by the two. On June 6, 1928, when she became ill and the business has since been conducted by the defendant.
It is asserted that December 1, 1928 Varner offered to purchase the plaintiff's interest for $700 and that he deposited $133 to bind the contract, but failed to deliver it to her for approval.
They gave a chattel mortgage to the loan company in return for a $100 loan, according to the petition. Charging failure to live up to the conditions of the contract, the plaintiff asks for an accounting of expenses and profits since last June 6, dissolution of the partnership, appointment of a receiver if necessary and a restraining order. Marcus McCallister is attorney for the plaintiff.

COMMISSIONERS OF COUNTIES DISCUSS REPAIRING BRIDGE
Greene and Clark County commissioners held a joint conference at Mad River on the Osborn-Springfield Road Monday afternoon to consider repairing the road bridge between Osborn and New Carlisle which started to collapse when the north abutment gave way during the heavy rainfall a week ago.
Traffic is blocked along this road until the damaged structure can be repaired. Traction service is expected to be resumed from Springfield to Dayton not later than Wednesday, according to an announcement by I. C. and E. officials.
The traction bridge east of Osborn was washed out and has delayed traffic on the line for a week. Only the suspended track remains above the water.
By Wednesday the bridge, known as the Mud Run bridge, located between Osborn and Medway, is expected to be put into condition for service. The ninety-foot span, put out of commission by the flood last Monday, will probably be dynamited from its present position. It cannot be repaired, it is said.
When the bridge is opened through service will be inaugurated once more. At present traction cars are running between Dayton and Osborn and Medway and Columbus, leaving a gap which is being filled by motor bus service. Passengers are transferred to buses at the point where the bridge collapsed.

WESTERN LOVE

It was a beautiful romance while it lasted, but George Gillespie, handsome cowboy actor, who married beautiful Katherine Thorne, Chicago heiress, in Phoenix, Ariz., has gone to Hollywood following a quarrel with his father-in-law. The bride's father, Robert J. Thorne, former president of Montgomery Ward & Co., bitterly opposed the match, as did Clymer S. Brown, Miss Thorne's erstwhile fiance.

A young man named William Haines, already known widely as an apt portrayer of leading parts on the screen, did a good job in a play that was making stage history before this young man ever dreamed of an acting career.

Not that "Alias Jimmy Valentine" is very old as plays go. But time has passed swiftly since the war and screen careers are made and broken even more quickly. "Alias Jimmy Valentine" must have been having its hey-day fifteen years ago and it's still a good play. Haines and his latest triumph, were at the Bijou Sunday and Monday. The screen version is sparkling new and has been treated kindly by the critics.

Brady's wing on Broadway. And Brady is the man who handed over the rights to "After Dark," or "Neither Maid, Wife nor Widow" to Christopher Morley for $25, only to see it rejuvenate the entire city of Hoboken.

Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings became foot-weary trying to find a producer for "What Price Glory" and George M. Cohan refused "Peg O' My Heart" when offered it in person by Laurette Taylor.

Phil Baker, the accordion man, is being disturbed from the audience by a new "plant," John Humphrey Muldowney, former vaudevillian. And this reviewer would like some of his gentle readers, if any, (readers I mean) to write in and tell him if this could be J. H. Muldowney, later sweet tender warbler for Jan Garber's erstwhile jazz band. The similarity of names is startling unless there are more Irish in this country than one would believe on first thought.

Some strange things happened this season. Elmer Rice's "Street Scene" smashed its way to the biggest money-making hit William A. Brady has had since "The Man Who Came Back." Yet it was peddled up and down Broadway for months. The Theater Guild rejected it. Sam Harris bought an option and then became frightened and Lawrence Webber handed it back with a pair of tongs. Brady and Winan refused an opportunity for a percentage. Then the Veteran Brady took a long chance and the answer is well known.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sourbelching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

SEE CATTLE FEEDING

A meeting of livestock men and other farmers will be held at the Madison County, Ohio, Experiment Farm, Wednesday afternoon, March 13, to see a new type of cattle feeding test now in progress at the farm. This test involves using different systems of feeding equivalent areas of corn, and determining the returns from the different systems.

Last fall H. W. Rogers, superintendent of the farm, put seven acres of corn into a silo and seven acres from the same field were cut and later the corn husked and cribbed. On November 21, ten head of 615 pound steers were started on the task of consuming the seven acres of corn that had been husked and cribbed and the stover from which the corn was husked. In addition to the corn, each steer has received two pounds of cottonseed meal daily and nearly one pound of mixed hay.

Another lot of fourteen steers were assigned to the job of eating the silage that had been made from the seven acres. Each of these steers receives two pounds of cottonseed meal daily and about a pound of mixed hay.

Eight pigs follow the silage-fed cattle and twelve follow the cattle receiving the shelled corn. The crib will be empty March 12, the day before the meeting at the farm. The gains on each lot of cattle and the pigs that follow them will be determined and values placed on the cattle by representatives from different markets.

The results of the test should serve as a guide for those farmers who want to know whether they should put more or less of their corn into a silo. The test will show the efficiency of a ration containing a full feed of silage without other corn.

The Madison County Experiment Farm is located four miles west of London. The meeting is called for 1:30 p. m.

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. They are better dyes because they contain plenty of real anilines—from three to five times more than other dyes. But you pay no more for them than for ordinary dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

"To stay slender—"

reach for a Lucky a most effective way of retaining a trim figure"

Billie Burke

"To stay slender reach for a Lucky Strike instead of a sweet when your sweet-tooth tempts you. I have practised this for years and find it a most effective way of retaining a trim figure. There is something to the toasting process which develops a flavor in Luckies that completely satisfies the desire for sweets. At the same time, toasting takes out the irritants and Luckies never affect the voice."

BILLIE BURKE

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.
